Post-War Plan Faces 1st Hurdle

Plan For Allied Council Faces Antagonism of Connally Who Fears Debate.

CAUTION FAVORED

Sub-Committee Wants To Go Slow: Sponsors Declare Passage Means Unity.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The proposal of four senators for an immediate Allied council on current and post-war problems faces its first hurdle today—a senate foreign relations committee headed by an open antagonist.

At the committee's regular weekly meeting, Chairman Tom Connally, (D., Tex.), is expected to refer the proposal to a three-man subcommittee composed of Sens. Walter F. George, (D., Ga.), Guy M. Gillette, (D., Ia.), and Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Mich.) There it may be subject to drastic amendment.

Although none of the subcommittee members has discussed the specific resolution, all of them are known to favor the utmost caution in placing the senate on record for any definite post-war international policy.

The subcommittee already has before it a resolution by Gillette representing the extent to which he believes the senate should go.

I would urge that the United States draw formal treaties with all the Allies, both large and small, along the broad and general lines of the Atlantic charter, even that apparently is more than Connally, usually an administration spokesman on international affairs, would endorse.

Connally spoke out against precipitate senate action yesterday in answer to the new resolution. He warned against any move which would open "a bitter and almost endless debate over controversial questions" at a time when unity and co-operation here and abroad are "imperative."

His view was echoed by several other senators, both Democrats and Republicans. Sen. Gerald P. Nye, (R., N. D.), a leader of pre-

War Brings Curb On St. Patrick's Day Celebrations

The spirit of St. Patrick, Ireland's patron saint, still lived today in the hearts of Irishmen throughout the world, but customary St. Patrick's celebrations were sharply curtailed by the war, even in neutral Ireland.

In Mansfield, shoppers for shamrock emblems might have been told that "Shamrock Green has gone to War." Because most of the little green emblems were made in Japan, stores in the city were "out of stock."

A number of true Irishmen, however, saved their shamrocks from past years and brought them out today to honor the man who, according to legend, drove the snakes out of Ireland. Other Mansfielders wore their green ties and scarfs.

No celebration is scheduled in Mansfield and the customary parades in larger cities were canceled because of war-time restrictions.

The traditional military parade in Ireland was called off because soldiers had more important work to do in guarding the neutral nation's borders. The cele-

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Lake seamen, whose occupational deferments were continued at the close of the lake navigation season last week, today were warned that they must return to their former ships or expect to be drafted.

Arrests In City Dim-Out Threatened

Rigid Instructions Will Be Issued for Test Tomorrow Night.

Arrest of violators of dim-out regulations during Thursday night's city-wide test will result if Police Captain Jesse J. Schwab, defense commander, is empowered to take such action by the Office of Civilian Defense.

Captain Schwab, in issuing an order today for all auxiliary police to assemble at police headquarters at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, and auxiliarymen will receive rigid instructions to make this demonstration 100 per cent effective to assure war department and state defense officials that Mansfield is prepared for forthcoming black-out tests.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates has ordered the entire personnel of his department on duty Thursday night and every block of the city will be visited by cruiser and foot patrols.

Air wardens will make their incident reports to their respective sector wardens and Schwab has indicated that the severity of offenses by householders, non-war industrial plants, business houses and other structures will determine the extent of penalty.

War department and state defense council observers will be in all parts of the city during the 20-minute test starting at 9 p. m. with a long steady blast of sirens. An alert will follow in a few minutes but all structures must be dimmed out until the all-clear signal at 9:20 p. m.

Only four of 59 violations reported during last week's four sectional dim-outs merited serious attention, Captain Schwab said in praising the universal public co-operation.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, defense coordinator, explained that war plants will not be required to participate in Thursday's dim-out, nor in the coming 20-county black-out test if their ability to darken their plants has the approval of the state OCD.

Street lights will not be shut off tomorrow night, nor will traffic lights be set at the yellow caution signal during the dim-out but during the approaching black-out all illumination will be shut off.

Since last week's district demonstrations several sirens have been readjusted. Householders who permitted rays of light to escape through faulty blinds, who left basement lights on or who failed to pull down blinds to shield the glow of heating stoves have been cautioned by their wardens.

BREAK FAILS

Convicts Commandeer Elevator But Don't Get Away.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Two paroled convicts who commandeered an elevator in the criminal courts building yesterday failed in their break for freedom after an exciting 25-minute chase up and down the elevator shaft.

Officials cut off the elevator power and the car was trapped between the sixth and seventh floors. They surrendered when officials threatened to unloose tear gas.

The prisoners, James Rio, 30, and Anthony Falbo, 26, were led into the prisoners' elevator from a court room where they are being tried on robbery charges. Suddenly they slipped out of their handcuffs and overpowered two guards. They then forced the operator to stop at each floor but their exit was barred by elevator doors.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— The Warner and Swasey plant today faced loss of some of the half-shift workers who do a four hour shift after working eight hours on their regular jobs in offices, schools and other "white collar" positions.

Members of the AFL International Association of Machinists union object to semi-shift workers refusing to join the union.

VERDICT UPHELD

The Irish Fight for Uncle Sam

AP Features

TODAY is St. Patrick's Day—day of the Fighting Irish. As ever, when a scrap is going on, the sons of Erin are in the thick of it. Here are some of the Irish-named heroes who have upheld Irish traditions with the U. S. fighting forces.

COLIN KELLY, Army air corps captain, lost his life but sank the Japanese battleship Haruna.

DANIEL J. CALLAGHAN, rear admiral and former aide to FDR, was killed in action in the Solomon Islands.

JOHN D. BULKELEY, torpedo boat commander, sank many Jap ships and planes, carried MacArthur from Corregidor.

EDWARD H. O'HARE, in his one-seat pursuit plane, shot down six Jap bombers off the Gilbert Islands.

Red Cross Volunteers Driving Hard To Reach $59,000 Goal Before Week Ends.

Only $17,000 short of the $59,000 goal, Mansfield and Richland county Red Cross War Fund workers today saw a good chance of meeting the goal by the end of the week.

Collections Tuesday amounted to $5,000, according to reports from the city, Shelby, county and townships. This sum brought total collections to date to $42,000.

Ward solicitors are still busy throughout the city and county making return calls at residences where no one was found at home last week. Industrial contributions are expected to be reported within the next few days.

Red Cross officials said they hoped to wind up the drive this week and declared an all-out ef-

Kansas Plans To Regulate Labor Unions.

TOPEKA, Kas. —(AP)— Kansas, the nation's testing ground for social revolution, has given her wary blessing to state regulation of labor unions.

Past decades have seen such innovations as constitutional prohibition, blue-sky investment laws and insured bank deposits come booming out of agricultural Kansas.

Now the smoke from scores of war-born factories soars across the wheat fields—and the house of representatives last night approved for passage a measure to require:

Licensing of labor-union agents; financial reports by unions; reports of fees, dues and assessments of members; and reports of salaries paid union officials.

BUSES 'FROZEN' BY ODT ORDER

Takes Steps To Halt 'Black Market' In School Vehicles, Other Conveyances.

Mansfield and Richland county's motorized conveyances for public transportation today were frozen into their present uses by the Office of Defense Transportation as part of a nation-wide effort to stabilize passenger transportation and stop a developing "black market" in school buses and other carrier types.

Although Ohio is listed among the states reporting violations in the sale or transfer of use of school buses, Richland county and Mansfield are not involved in the practice, it was indicated.

School officials, petitioning an ODT freeze of such equipment, complained that a mass exodus of school buses has been in prospect for the end of the present school year when about 30,000 such carriers will be released from contract regulations.

The freezing order requires that all federal agencies, war contractors, public carrier concerns and related businesses file an imme-

Yank Patrols Threaten Big Axis Base at Gafsa With Advance.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—DNB, in a Berlin radio broadcast heard here today by Reuters said the British eighth army had launched an attack on the Mareth line last night. "The scale of the fighting cannot be judged by reports so far available, but Berlin quarters believe this is a major attack," DNB said.

(By United Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa—Planes of the British Eighth army are systematically battering the Mareth line and other Allied pilots have made a heavy attack on the Axis base of Gabes in what appears to be the first movies in an all-out offensive against Marshal Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps.

(Allied and Axis radios agreed that the Eighth army was about to start an assault. The German-controlled Paris radio said a large-scale offensive was imminent and added that troop movements had been observed at the Eighth army's positions.

(Radio Algiers, under Allied sponsorship, said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth army was ready to attack and that the moment was approaching when the last Axis forces will be driven from Africa.

(Radio Algiers said Allied planes had cut the Gabes-Sfax railroad line in several places and had thereby deprived Rommel of his only north-south communication).

North of the Eighth army position Allied patrols penetrated to within three miles of Gafsa, big Axis base in the south-central sector, and were in position to menace the Germans by moving

Motorist Dies When Hit By Train In New London.

NEW LONDON—His car demolished by a special Big Four passenger train, George Patton, 53, of Akron, was killed instantly about 10 a. m. today at the North Main street crossing in New London.

Patton, who operates a farm near Wellington, had made a business call in New London and was returning to the farm when he drove onto the tracks in front of the westbound train. Investigating officers said his view of the on-coming train was obscured by a freight train on a siding near the crossing. The crossing flashers were operating.

The body was taken to the Sackett funeral home and will be returned to Wellington. It was understood there are no near relatives.

Bombers Trip Jap Offense

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The heaviest series of air attacks ever made on Japanese-held Kiska Island in a single day was carried out Monday, the navy announced today, when American planes raided the Aleutians base six times between dawn and dusk.

(By United Press)

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—Japan's offensive pace in the island arc north of Australia was knocked off-balance today, and her potential invasion base at Dobo, in the Aroe islands, still smoked from the blasting of Allied bombers.

Hudson patrol bombers and long range Beaufighters vainly searched the Arafura sea Tuesday for traces of the three-ship Japanese convoy that was attacked by Allied medium bombers on Monday north of the Aroe group, a headquarters communique said. Unable to find the enemy, the planes attacked the Dobo area—probable destination of the disrupted convoy.

Pilots reported little sign of recent activity at Dobo, which previous Allied attacks had virtually wiped out. It was thought the three-ship convoy carried men and

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia —(U.P.)— One year ago today two Flying Fortresses rolled in for a landing on Australian soil and a tall man wearing a gold-braided cap, wrinkled army trousers and a bush jacket stepped out of one of them. Gen. Douglas MacArthur had arrived from the besieged Philippines to take command of United Nations forces here.

On the first anniversary of his assumption of command, MacArthur still is a long way from the goal he set in his first public statement: "The president of the United States ordered me to break through the Japanese lines and proceed from Corregidor to Australia for the purpose, as I understand it, of organizing the American offensive against Japan. A primary purpose of this is the relief of the Philippines. I came through and I shall return."

But his men have won im-

'Buy Extra Bond', County's Slogan For April Drive

"Buy an extra bond a month" will be the slogan of the Mansfield War Bond Sales committee during the April drive, Paul M. Eliot, chairman of the committee, said today.

Pledge cards will be distributed to all companies with the 10 per cent payroll savings plan. Each worker will be given a card of a color indicative of the amount of his pledge.

Of the $13,000,000,000 national bond quota for April, $8,000,000,000 must come from individuals and corporations with the smaller share being bought by the banks. To meet this figure, groups not yet definitely pledged to buy bonds must be contacted and those who are on the payroll plan must buy more, Eliot said.

He urged retail establishments

WREST LEAD FROM NAZIS ALONG DONETS

RESISTANCE FIERCE

Stockholm Reports Germany Massing Entire Fleet In Northern Norway.

(By International News Service)

MOSCOW—Russian forces are beginning to wrest the initiative from the Germans in the middle Donets region of the southern front, while Soviet armies on the central front have smashed to within 50 miles of Smolensk, battlefront dispatches indicated today.

The Germans are concentrating their main forces in the sector south of Kharkov and many fierce battles are raging in this area.

(The German radio claimed that large Soviet forces had been encircled east and southeast of Kharkov and that Nazi troops have occupied important road junctions between the Donets bend and Byelgorod. Other Nazi formations were said to be advancing west of Byelgorod, which is 40 miles northeast of Kharkov.)

The Soviet high command, in a supplement to the regular midnight communique, reported that Russian advances were continuing on the central front west of Moscow despite stiff resistance by the enemy.

Red army units have occupied scores of new localities, including the district center of Khody and the railroad station of Ugoryevskoe.

"In another sector, the Germans fiercely counter-attacked, but were repelled," the supplementary report said.

"Three hundred enemy troops were killed, while eight tanks and ten guns were captured."

Along the northern reaches of the Donets river, fierce battles are under way. Nine enemy tanks were destroyed in this region, while one Soviet unit attacked and broke into an enemy-held village, killing 200 of the Nazis.

"West of Sevsk, one Soviet unit destroyed six tanks and accounted for an infantry company," the supplementary communique re-

Green Compares Draft-Labor Plan To Axis Set-up.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— President William Green of the American Federation of Labor said today the Austin-Wadsworth national service bill would lead to slave labor conditions comparable to those in Axis countries.

Appearing before the senate military affairs committee in opposition to the bill, he said it would take from those on the battle and production fronts the "enthusiastic zeal and spirit now so characteristic of their efforts."

"The American Federation of Labor must be and is unalterably opposed to these bills, and is unalterably opposed to any similar proposals that so directly undermine the most important props of our democracy," Green said. "The federation has come to the conclusion that so drastic and unprecedented a measure is unnecessary."

Bulldogs Try 11th Title Bid

Team Has More Talent Than Previous Quints.

By HAROLD LISK

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Ten times Canton McKinley high school has qualified basketball teams for the state class A basketball tournament. Ten times, Canton McKinley cagers have gone home without the crown.

This is a record for the event, even though McKinley is not too proud of it. The Bulldogs, for the 11th time, qualified for what in normal years would be the state tournament in downing a classy Warren five last week, 54 to 52.

Both Coach Herman B (Bup) Rearick and his boys are resolved that this year things will be different and the Bulldogs will bring back the bacon. McKinley opens regional play at Kent Friday night against Akron West

Canton high school followers are banking on either McKinley or Canton Lehman to carry the city's colors into the state tournament finals at Columbus, March 27. Lehman qualified for regional play by defeating a seeded Youngstown South five and will meet East Cleveland Shaw at Kent.

If both Canton fives are victorious in the openers they will meet for the second time this year, in the regional finals Saturday night In their previous meeting, Lehman edged the Bulldogs, 43-40.

If McKinley can come through to a state class A crown, 34-year-old Rearick will have given the school its greatest athletic year in history. Bup's football eleven ended Massillon's long reign as state grid champions last fall with a 35 to 0 pasting.

Although last fall was Rearick's first in charge of football, he has directed the school's basketball teams since 1938 A star guard on Dover high school's 1927 state champion, Bup later was captain and all-Ohio guard of Wittenberg college's great team of 1931 Before coming to Canton, Rearick coached at Dover and in 1933, piloted the Crimsons to their second state crown

Regardless of what happens in regional play, there is little doubt the current McKinley team has more individual talent than any in the history of the school As a team, the Bulldogs were slightly erratic, despite their great potentialities, until late in the season.

Including tournament play, McKinley has recorded 18 victories against two losses Besides dropping the mid-season tilt to Lehman the Bulldogs lost a 40 to 38 decision to Massillon In 20 games, McKinley has racked up 1020 points for an average of 51, against 779 for the opposition, an average of 34 75

Dale Haverstock, junior forward, is the greatest offensive basketball player in McKinley history, most observers agree. Standing six feet, one inch, Haverstock scored 306 points in his ... games for an average of 15.3.

A deadly shot from every position, a talented backboard player and a great competitor, he sparks the club and without him, it loses 50 per cent of its effectiveness. He is 18 years old and the army may end his high school basketball career this summer

Earl Loucks, a six-foot senior, holds down the other regular forward position, while Ernie Parks, 6-foot-2-inch Negro, reigns at center, a position from which he has scored 218 points in 19 games. Parks, playing his first full season as a cage regular, is rated as one of the outstanding centers in northern Ohio. He only reached his 17th birthday last fall.

Bill Cook and Vic Wernet, both seniors under six feet, hold down the guard positions. Cook, a capable all-around performer, has netted 205 points in 20 games for an average of 10.2 per game.

Stars Increase On League Flag

CHICAGO —(UP)— The stars on the American league's service flag today equalled the number of those on a similar emblem for the entirety of the first world war.

The eight clubs have sent 144 players to war, 79 going to the army, 55 to the navy, seven to the coast guard, two to the Royal Canadian Air Force and one to the marine corps. In World war I 93 players went to the army and 51 to the navy.

The Detroit Tigers and Chicago White Sox top the list with 23 players each in the armed services. Philadelphia has 21, Cleveland 17, Washington 16, Boston and St. Louis 15 each and New York 14.

In addition to players in uniform, 19 American league athletes have given up baseball to continue working in defense plants or on the farm.

Ross Reported As Improving

NEW YORK —(UP)— Marine Corp. Barney Ross was reported "improving' from another attack of malaria at St. Albans Naval hospital today as officials postponed indefinitely his scheduled war plant speaking tour.

Third naval district public relations officers said the former boxing champion would be under treatment at the hospital for an indefinite period.

Ross contracted malaria while fighting on Guadalcanal. He suffered a recurrence Monday and collapsed shortly before he was slated to address a Red Cross rally.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The double-barreled basketball show that starts tomorrow in the Garden has been the subject of a bit of blasting for 'commercialism" but from what we hear, most of the commercialism was on the part of colleges that aimed for the more lucrative invitation tourney instead of the NCAA event . On the other hand Prof Philip O Barger, the NCAA prexy says his organization would just as soon hold its tournament in college gyms but occasionally it has to big for big gates so as to put some cash in the treasury.

EVANSVILLE, Ind. —(AP)— The Detroit Tigers, who have no place to work indoors, were kept idle yesterday by weather but army authorities offered them the use of a fieldhouse at Camp Breckinridge, Ky, 28 miles away.

Manager Steve O'Neill, however, couldn't take advantage of the offer, lacking transportation facilities for the short jaunt.

St. John's Captures Church League Crown

Score 36-35 Win Over Baptists In Championship Playoff Tilt.

By WALLY DAVIS

ST. JOHN'S basketeers won the Senior Church league championship last night with a thrilling 36 to 35 victory over Baptist in the playoff game on the Y. M. C. A. hardwood.

Bouncing back from a 32 to 25 trimming from these same Baptists in the title game of the loops' tournament a week ago, the Saints turned on a last half rally to edge out the win.

Trailing 24-17 at halftime, the Champs wiped out the deficit with an 11-point spree in the third frame while Baptists got only four, knotting it up at 28-all entering the finale. The Saints chalked up eight tallies in the fourth to Baptist's seven.

With Chuck Condon leading the way, Baptist took an 8-7 advantage in the opening stanza. They rolled in 16 markers in the second to gain their 7-point halftime advantage

Jim Robertson and Bob Nikolaus were the main springs in the Saints' last half spurt, getting 14 of their team's 19 tallies. Nikolaus, held scoreless the first half, had eight while Robertson had six.

The victory gave St. John's a record of 11 victories and one defeat for the season.

In a preliminary tilt, Friendly House All Stars whipped a Y. M C A quintet, 43 to 33. The winners also were forced to come back with a second half rally after trailing at intermission. The Y five held their opponent to three points in the second quarter while chalking up 11 to take a 22-14 lead, but Friendly House stormed back with 29 markers in the last two periods.

George McIntire, coach of Union High's Richland county champs, joined Mansfield hoop circles and tossed in 10 tallies to share scoring honors for the winners. Tall Jack Harmett, Union center and hero of the recent county tourney, also performed for the Friendly House outfit, collecting three buckets for six points.

Edwards Gets Draft Call

Ex-Mansfield Player May Be Lost To Tribe.

LAFAYETTE Ind —(AP)— Sore muscles shortened the Cleveland Indians' spring training session today as Manager Lou Boudreau discovered that factory shifts aren't the best possible conditioners for baseball

Most members of the Tribe held war plant jobs throughout the winter instead of pursuing the traditional ball players' routine of hunting, fishing, golf, bowling and similar off season activities, and they found the jump back into athletic activity too much for them

Yesterday's initial workout was scheduled to run two hours, but Boudreau cut it to 40 minutes when he discerned that several of his men were on the verge of collapse after a brisk session of calisthenics, running and pepper games.

The young manager expects to start prolonged practice sessions tomorrow and have his pitchers on a light program of throwing

COUNCIL ACTS TO REGULATE BUCYRUS BUSES

Measure Licenses Taxi Firm Line To Army Camp; Study Curfew.

BUCYRUS—Bucyrus city council Tuesday night adopted legislation regulating the licensing and operating of buses in the city but turned down proposed legislation for taxi operation, pending a change in the ordinance.

The taxi legislation hit a snag when three councilmen voted "no" to the regulating and licensing ordinance on the grounds that no provision was made indicating where the taxis were to be parked, objecting to their use of available parking space on Washington square at the cost of private motorists.

The bus legislation became necessary during the last two weeks when two local taxi operators placed in operation buses operating from the army camp to the downtown district. The legislation provides for indemnity insurance from $6,000 to $36,000 and property insurance of $5,000 and a license fee of $25 for each bus. The legislation also carries a provision making it illegal to park the buses on city streets.

Council heard a plea for a different guard system at the West Mansfield Pennsylvania crossing from Mayor William F. Whiteamire who urged that the city demand a watchman at the crossing instead of the flasher signals, pointing out that four fatal accidents have occurred at the crossing within the last two and one-half years.

Adoption of a curfew law in Bucyrus was a step closer, after council approved recommendations of a special committee asking the establishment of a 10 o'clock curfew for children 16 years of age and under. Councilman Chester Sharrock urged that confectionery shops operating dance spots until late hours also be given consideration in drawing up the curfew law. Such places are contributing to youthful delinquency in Bucyrus, he said.

COUNCIL MEETS

Approve Extension of Sewer District at Galion.

GALION—During a brief meeting of city council Tuesday night, an ordinance was passed approving plans for the extension of Sewer District No. 12, known as the Renschville sewer.

The claim of James E. Hanley for damages resulting to his property when a sewer backed up, amounting to $35.64 was read to council, and City Solicitor George Davies was authorized to draw up the necessary legislation to pay it.

Mayor William Amann's report for the month showed collections as follows:

Fines, $221.40; costs, $17.10; licenses, $65.00, totaling $303.50.

SHELBY AREAS TO DIM LIGHTS

Test Set For 9:20 P. M. Today In Most of City; Affects Four Districts.

SHELBY — Approximately two-thirds of Shelby will participate in the dim-out tonight, Arthur Love, chief air raid warden, announced today.

Districts 1, 2, 3 and 6 will take part in the test alert. All of the lights in the homes and business places south of Main street and in the northwest section of the city are to be turned out tonight. In addition no cigarets, cigars or matches are to be lit during the dim-out.

The street lights will remain on during the period. Traffic and pedestrians are to be off the street. Motorists caught in the dim-out should pull their cars over to the right curb and turn off the headlights.

The first siren will sound at 9:20 p. m. when the lights should be turned off. The all-clear signal will be given at 9:40 p. m.

A city-wide dim-out preceding the county blackout will be held in the near future.

DISCUSS CHILD DELINQUENCY IN ASHLAND MEET

Plan Open Session Monday To Consider Curfew For City's Youth.

ASHLAND—Ashland city council has announced a town meeting for Monday night at which open discussion will be held regarding a curfew ordinance proposed by council.

Council will meet as a committee and has extended a general invitation to Parent-Teacher association members, service clubs, ministerial association, school authorities, probate court, parents and others to attend the 7:30 p. m. meeting.

The curfew ordinance has been proposed in council in an effort to curb juvenile delinquency within the city. Recently several boys were found guilty of theft of considerable sums of money which they obtained by breaking into local stores at night and other cases of delinquency have been brought to the attention of council by city police and other authorities.

SEEKS FEDERAL HELP TO BUILD TRAILER CAMP

Shelby Council Asks Help In Providing Facilities For Air Depot Workers.

SHELBY — City officials have called for the assistance of federal officials in erecting the Municipal trailer camp here to provide space for the trailers of workers on the depot project, north of the city.

The city, through Capt. Glen Shaw, army engineer in charge of the project, has asked the federal government to furnish a portable service house for the utilities instead of building such a house. If a portable structure is not available, the city is asking the federal government to erect the camp.

Mayor W. R. Morris told council about the trailer camp during the regular semi-monthly meeting Monday night at the city hall.

Council passed legislation approviding the reading of meters only once every other month by the Ohio Fuel Gas company because of the shortage of labor. Rates for the in between month will be estimated for previous bills and adjusted when the meters are read. Bills will be sent out on a monthly basis the same as usual.

If a consumer wants to read his own for the month's bill that is to be estimated, he can do so by getting a postcard from the gas company office, it was pointed out. Adjustments will be made in the readings when the gas company employes reads the meters.

The council approving leasing a small part of the George Holtz land on Park avenue where a pumping station for the utility company is located. The lease is for $10 a year.

Mansfield war industries jobs are waiting to be filled. They are good jobs—well paid jobs—vital to our war effort. They must be filled by local men and women, for Mansfield has no facilities for housing outsiders.

The task of filling these jobs has been given to the United States Employment Service. This agency serves local employers and job-seekers without charge.

The U. S. Employment Service is the operating arm of the War Manpower Commission.

Our plan is NOT a job freeze. Its purpose is to encourage, on a voluntary basis, the orderly transfer of workers from those jobs regarded as less-essential to those which are vital to the war effort. Seniority and re-employment rights are protected under the plan.

If you feel that the work you are doing is not directly concerned with winning the war—if you want to do more to help—let the U. S. Employment Service assist you in making the change to a war job where you are needed.

If you are uncertain whether the work you are doing is "essential," consult the Employment Service. You will not be encouraged to change unless by so doing you can definitely aid the war program.

If you know that you are employed now at your highest skill in a war job, do not apply for jobs listed here.

STOCK MARKET PRICE TRENDS APPEAR MIXED

Power Production Falls Off Slightly, But Remains Ahead of Last Year.

NEW YORK — Stock market trends were mixed today, price changes holding to a narrow rung in moderate activity.

Fractional advances were scored at the opening by National Distillers, Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, and Texas Co., among others. Off a bit were Radio, Chrysler and Public Service of New Jersey.

Followers of utilities studied for trends the Edison Electric Institute report that power production last week was 3,944,679,00 kilowatt hours, a shade below the previous week's total and 17.5 per cent more than in the comparable period of 1942.

TOLEDO U. TO BAN ATHLETICS

Coaches Assigned To Teaching Positions For Next Year.

TOLEDO — (AP) — Athletics are to be eliminated from the University of Toledo for duration of the war, the board of directors voted last night.

Although Dr. Clarence W. Spears, head football coach and athletic director; David V. Connelly, baseball coach, and Burl Friddle, basketball coach, were reappointed by the board they were named to their teaching positions in physical education but not to athletic jobs.

The field house has been taken over by the army air forces.

BUSES 'FROZEN' BY ODT ORDER

Takes Steps To Halt 'Black Market' In School Vehicles, Other Conveyances.

diate inventory of their passenger equipment.

The order applies to every vehicle carrying nine or more persons in passenger transportation in the United States, its territories and possessions. Affected by the regulation are:

City buses, 44,000; street cars, 25,000; inter-city buses, 20,000; school buses, 93,000; rapid transit elevated and subway cars, 10,000; suburban rail cars, 3,000; trackless trolley vehicles, 3,500.

The order holds the vehicles to "the particular job they are now performing," an ODT spokesman said, and will prevent the "migration" of equipment from one area to another "not on the basis of need, but because the operator sees a chance to make more money."

At the same time, in line with the government's announced plans to keep the nation's automobiles rolling, OPA announced that additional pre-Pearl Harbor and "Victory" tires will be available April 1 to certain lower mileage ration passenger car owners.

OPA issued an order making it possible for "B" and "C" book holders with a mileage ration of more than 240 miles monthly to get new casings of the lower qualities—grade two—when they need replacements. Previously only those with monthly mileage over 560 could get new tires. Motorists with rations between 560 and 1,000 monthly, previously eligible only for new low quality tires, will now be able to get grade one casings.

The new action in regard to buses and street cars ties in with prior restrictions on railroads. Last September, Eastman "froze" railroad passenger schedules and banned chartered train service and special trips.

Airplane passenger traffic has been closely regulated since the beginning of the war by a system of "priorities" which virtually restricts air travel to military personnel and persons on war business.

Schedules of public transportation companies and inter-city bus lines are not affected by today's order. However, the equipment is "frozen" in the company's system. A bus company, for instance, can shift its equipment from one route to another to take care of fluctuating demands, but cannot transfer its vehicles to serve routes of another company.

Police Guarding Rooney After Threat on Life

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Police said they were guarding Mickey Rooney at an undisclosed place early today, after his father told detectives he had received a telephoned threat against the 21-year-old actor's life.

But Mickey's mother, Mrs. Nell Pankey, and a studio spokesman said they were inclined to believe the calls came from a crank or a prankster, and were of no consequence.

Joe Yule, Rooney's father, reported a youthful voice, perhaps that of a boy, called Yule's North Hollywood home last night and asked for Rooney, said Detective Lt. William Ellinson.

Yule said he impersonated Mickey when a second call came shortly afterward, and that the voice said: "We'll murder you at 12 tonight."

Nothing happened at midnight, police declared, but Ellinson and Det. Lt. E. J. Long were assigned to guard Rooney.

portant defensive victories, and he has changed the temper of the Australian people from dark despair to optimism.

Now it is possible to tell some things that could not be told in the black days when the Japanese hordes were over-running Singapore, the Philippines and the Dutch East Indies.

Australia was almost defenseless when MacArthur arrived. Her best troops were far overseas. In the battle of Malaya she had lost one entire division almost before it could go into action. Australia, with a long, vulnerable coast line that is difficult to defend, felt about as Britain did after Dunkerque. She was open to invasion from almost every direction.

MacArthur's first task was to build a defensive force out of the fragments of Australian and Dutch troops that were available.

The United States Army Air Force, working against tremendous odds, held Port Darwin and Port Moresby, in New Guinea, while MacArthur's staff developed the available forces into a defensive team. Australian troops came home to defend their native soil. American soldiers arrived.

Gradually the United Nations began to win successes - Mile Bay, Papua, the Battle of the Coral Sea, Japanese convoys were placed under almost constant attack.

The result was that the enemy was checked. MacArthur used his first year here to win a stalemate. The fluid, uncertain front that existed a year ago has been frozen into strong defensive positions on both sides. Now it is a race to see who will mount the most men and equipment along the defensive line and then move over to the offensive.

Planned NYA Visit—About 25 members of the Young Democrats club planned at their meeting in Democratic headquarters last night to visit the NYA camp near Mifflin for their May session. Dolly Madison members will accompany them. A business meeting will be held at headquarters in April. Cards were in play with refreshments served at the social period.

Rev. Lewis Speaks—Rev. Glenn Lewis, rector of the Grace Episcopal church, will speak on "I Believe in Jesus Christ," at the First Christian church today at 7:30 p. m. This service is the second in the series of union services being held by the Park Avenue Baptist, First Christian, First Presbyterian, St. Luke Lutheran, Grace Episcopal and First Congregational churches.

Collections Dwindle—Real estate tax payments mailed to the county treasurer's office yesterday were less than half the amount received the day before, office attaches said today, estimating that all returns would be in and tabulated by the first of the week. Deadline for payments was March 15, although mail receipts since that time have materially increased the total which stands now at $696,222. There was $7,317 in yesterday's mail.

Young Shoplifter — Manager Paul Howard of the W. T. Grant company store, North Main street, late yesterday turned over to Captain John Miller and Patrolman Russell Miles a 15-year-old boy who allegedly was attempting to steal two sweaters from a display counter. He was turned over to the custody of Juvenile Officer Ralph Carroll.

Beekeepers Meet — Richland county beekeepers will hear talks by James Bain and Merle Young of Marion at their meeting Friday at 8 p. m. in the common pleas courtroom at the courthouse. Bain is a queen bee breeder and will speak on "Spring Management." Young will report on the bee sessions during Farmers' Week in Columbus.

Prowler Routed — Patrolman Carl Beard and Arthur Conrady early today were unable to find a prowler who last night tried twice to enter the home of J. C. Little, 244 Park avenue east. According to the police report, the trespasser was frightened away on his second visit when the opening of a window set off a buzzer in the house.

ALLIED PLANES BATTER GABES, MARETH LINE

Attacks Seen as First Blows In All-Out Offensive Against Rommel.

eastward and closing the bottleneck at Gabes.

The air attack on Gabes was made on the night of March 15-16, an Allied headquarters communique said. Roads, an airfield and the railroad line were the prime targets. British Bisley bombers ranged in and out of the Gabes area and hits were seen on the railway and highway installations.

American Flying Fortresses and P-38 Lightnings flew out over the waters between Tunisia and Sicily to strike at Rommel's sea communications. They spotted a half dozen motor barges and the Fortresses went in fast to the attack. Three barges were set afire and flames sprung 300 feet in the air.

The patrols threatening Gafsa were made up entirely of Americans. They encountered enemy tanks about three miles north of the town, but the result of whatever action occurred was not known here at headquarters.

West of Medenine, near the Mareth line, Axis artillery opened an apparent attempt to slow Montgomery's preparations for an offensive. The Royal Air Force replied to the bombardment by continuing its blasting of the Mareth line positions.

'Black Out' Petain In North Africa

ALGIERS —(UP)— All photographs and statements of French Chief of State Marshal Henri Philippe Petain were removed from public display throughout North Africa on orders of the Giraud government today as another step toward a full union with the Fighting French.

Further evidence of a rapprochement with the forces of Gen. Charles De Gaulle was seen in reports that Gen. Georges Catrooux, Fighting French delegate general to Syria, will be appointed deputy civil commander of North Africa.

De Gaulle Expected To Go To Africa

LONDON —(AP)— The French national committee announced today Gen. Charles De Gaulle was expected to leave shortly for Algiers to confer with Gen. Henri Giraud on cementing a union of all Frenchmen who are fighting the Axis.

Giraud, French high commissioner of North Africa, called for such a conference in his speech Sunday repudiating the Vichy-German armistice and repealing Vichy's oppressive laws.

The committee of the Fighting French met yesterday and the announcement was their answer to Giraud's appeal.

De Gaulle's headquarters received with unqualified satisfaction news of the resignation of Gen. Jean Marie Bergeret, former Vichy air minister and Giraud's deputy for civil affairs.

He was one of four supporters of the late Admiral Jean Darlan to whose presence in North African positions the Fighting French objected. They accused Bergeret of imprisoning and brutalizing hundreds of Frenchmen for refusal to accept the validity of the armistice and for continuing the war against the Germans.

Giraud's pronouncements were welcomed by both the British and U. S. governments in statements by Prime Winston Churchill and Secretary of State Hull and brought the North African administration very closely into line with policies De Gaulle has enunciated as essential conditions for union.

Churchill, Hull Laud Giraud Speech

LONDON —(AP)— Prime Minister Churchill told commons today the British government warmly welcomed the speech of Gen. Henri Giraud, French high commissioner of North Africa, repudiating the French armistice and Vichy racial laws, and added that the U. S. government knew and agreed with the British stand.

Churchill said he no longer saw any "question of principle" dividing the forces under Giraud and the Fighting French faction under Gen. Charles De Gaulle.

Asked if De Gaulle was going to accept an invitation to confer with Giraud, Churchill said "I trust that meeting will be arranged in due course."

Secretary of State Hull in Washington promptly associated himself with Churchill's appeal and emphasized that the United States government "is in the heartiest accord with this timely and splendid statement of the British prime minister."

Plans Drastic Measure After Los Angeles Mocks 'Alert.'

LOS ANGELES —(U.P.)— Mayor Fletcher Bowron, irked by loiterers who continued to loiter and crane their necks skyward during yesterday's air raid alert, announced today that a measure was being drafted "with teeth" to force compliance.

A 400-mile strip of California coastline was placed on the alert yesterday for 20 minutes because of "air targets later proved to be friendly." Civilian defense officials said it was a "good thing they were friendly."

PROBE INCOME TAX FAILURES

Cleveland Office Says 25,000 Failed to Include Payment.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— An investigation of the failure of more than 25,000 persons in the northeastern district to pay income taxes will begin when tax returns have been processed and tabulated, Internal Revenue Collector Frank F. Gentsch said today.

He said that of 750,000 returns opened, 25,000 did not contain remittances. He estimated that 40 per cent of the returns were from soldiers who had no tax to pay.

He declined to speculate on the remaining 15,000 persons who had not paid, other than that the cases would be investigated.

material for rebuilding that invasion springboard.

The raiders hit the barracks, radio station, and other buildings at Dobo and Wokam, a small island off Dobo. Three enemy luggers were strafed and left in a sinking condition.

Speaking of the missing convoy, an army spokesman said: "There is a possibility some of the transports were sunk, although the search did not reveal any debris. The convoy apparently turned back toward Ambon without reaching its destination."

Allied bombers and fighters plastered the Lae and Salamaua area of northeast New Guinea Tuesday in coordinate attacks.

Pacific Lull Due To Be Broken Soon

PEARL HARBOR —(U.P.)— Belief was growing today that the current lull in the battle of the Pacific may be broken soon.

Four months have passed without large scale hostilities—the longest period of inactivity in more than a year.

There is little indication at present where along the 5,000 mile sea and island front the new fighting will flare, but the most logical scenes of action would be at either or both ends of the Japanese defense arch north of Australia—At Rabaul on New Britain Island in the Northern Solomons, or the Western Aleutian Islands.

The last major clash was the mid-November Japanese attempt to recapture Guadalcanal.

The lull has speeded up strengthening processes to the point where both sides now may be ready.

U. S. Subs Bring Jap Loss Score To 199

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The United States submarine score against Japanese ships in the Pacific war zone today stood at 199 —including 138 sunk, 23 listed as probably sunk, and 38 damaged.

Successful attacks against seven enemy vessels were reported by the navy yesterday in a communique which listed four as sunk and three damaged.

Those sunk included a destroyer, a large cargo ship, a large transport and a medium-sized cargo vessel. The damaged ships were a medium-size cargo carrier, a medium-size tanker and a small cargo ship.

No details were given.

War Brings Curb On St. Patrick's Day Celebrations

bration in Dublin began with the ceremony of blessing the shamrock, while the Green was distributed this morning to all soldiers on the island.

Eire, or the Irish Free State, probably was the only country in the world today where an Irishman couldn't "drown the shamrock" in Irish whisky. Saloons and bars were closed in the Free State and hopes that they might be opened for the celebration were dashed when a new liquor bill was held up in the senate.

There were no restrictions, however, in North Ireland, and American soldiers, sailors, and marines stationed there joined in traditional ceremonies.

More than a dozen leading Irish stage, screen, and radio stars in the United States were to appear today in a St. Patrick's program in New York. Among the Irish stars who were invited were Pat Rooney, Joe Howard, Ed Gardner of "Duffy's Tavern," Actress Susan Hayward, Lois January, Spike Harrison, and Pat Harrington.

Duck Helps Study Of Gas Warfare At Institute

CINCINNATI —(INS)— The common, barnyard duck has been selected as the "guinea pig" in the study of chemical burns suffered in gas warfare.

The announcement of the selection was made by Dr. I. Arthur Mirsky, director of the May Institute for Medical Research, a department of the Jewish hospital in Cincinnati, following discovery that the duck behaves like man in response to chemicals.

Research efforts during 1942 were concentrated principally on studies on prevention and treatment of gas war casualties, Dr. Mirsky said.

This program, which was conducted as the result of discussions with the U. S. Surgeon-General's office and the Office for Scientific Research and Development, was aided in by Dr. Albert Brown of the Ophthalmology department of the hospital.

Dr. Brown, Dr. Mirsky disclosed in an annual report of the institution operations, has made numerous discoveries in treatment of chemical burns of the eye.

3 ESCAPE FROM FARM AT O. S. R.

Three Inmates Flee In Second 'Break' In Week; Nebraska Police Capture One.

Three Ohio State Reformatory inmates walked away from the institution's hog farm yesterday, the second escape within the last week effected under cover of rain.

While a posse of guards was searching along the railroad near the reformatory for the three, Osceola, Neb., police arrested a man whom they believe escaped from the institution here March 12. They booked him as Charles Setzer, 22, although the reformatory fugitive is Charles Fetzer, 21, sentenced from Lucas county for auto theft March 30, 1942. He left from the dairy barn March 12 of this year.

Those who walked away yesterday were: Bunion Triplet, 26, received Oct. 14, 1942, from Pike county to serve one to 20 years for arson; George Heckman, 19, received from Lucas county where he had been sentenced for breaking and entering, and Nicholas Miller, 18, received April 10, 1942 from Erie county where he had been sentenced for auto theft. The two youths, known as juvenile delinquents, had been given sentences of one year to age, or until they reach 21.

They were last seen by section workmen along the railroad right-of-way near the reformatory, having gained about a half-hour start before their disappearance was discovered. Footprints, traced for some distance, provided little clue since they led to grassy plots where they could not be followed.

HENS HAVE TO MOVE

BOSTON —(U.P.)— The hens at the Deer Island jail in Boston Harbor were "setting" pretty until the fuel oil shortage came along. Now they have been moved out of their deluxe quarters on the second and third floors of the administration building and 160 petty offenders have moved in. It's all a part of the program to save fuel in the city's penal institutions.

ported. "At another point the Germans attacked, but the Russians outflanked them and wiped them out.

"South of Lake Ilmen, Soviet forces advanced to a highway and destroyed 86 field fortifications. In another sector, they wiped out a whole battalion and occupied several localities."

Russian tanks were reported to have sent a large German armored and motorized infantry force reeling back in retreat southeast of Kharkov.

Unleashing a series of sudden counter-blows on the Donets river front, the Russians inflicted heavy losses on the Nazis in a large-scale tank and infantry engagement southeast of Kharkov. At least 1,500 enemy troops were slain as the Soviets prevented the Nazis from fording the upper Donets river and pressed forward to within 50 or 60 miles of Smolensk.

Scores of additional localities were overrun as the Russians advanced steadily toward Smolensk and Staraya Russa.

RAF Night Raids Are Interrupted

LONDON —(U.P.)— The RAF night offensive was interrupted for the fourth consecutive night last night, probably by bad weather over the continent.

Mosquito bombers swept across the coast line in the afternoon, however, to bomb the railway workshops at Paderborn in western Germany.

An air ministry communique said the main target, a large, oblong building housing a locomotive repair shop, was hit squarely. Smoke billowed up 4,000 feet. One bomber failed to return.

Stockholm Reports Nazis Massing Fleet

LONDON —(U.P.)— A Stockholm dispatch said today that the entire German high seas fleet, including three capital ships and two aircraft carriers is assembling in northern Norway.

The dispatch, credited the report to the naval correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Nya Dagligt Allehanda, revived speculation that Germany was about to complement her intensified submarine offensive in the Atlantic with large-scale surface raids on the Allies' vital sea lanes.

Germany's super-battleship, the 35,000 tons-plus Tirpitz, is being joined in Norwegian waters by the 26,000-ton sister-battleships, Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, last reported under repair in German shipyards after being battered by British planes in a spectacular dash through Dover strait a year ago, Allehanda said.

In addition, it said, two German aircraft carriers have left for northern Norway. Though the dispatch did not identify the carriers, they were presumed to be the new sister ships, the 19,250-ton Graf Zeppelin and Deutschland.

Warn Hitler Ready To Start Gas War

(By United Press)

A "mystery" radio purporting to broadcast from Germany in behalf of German labor, warned today that Adolf Hitler was ready to begin gas warfare on the eastern front and appealed to its listeners to prevent it.

The broadcast reported that since Jan. 16, two trains have been leaving daily between 3 a. m. and 5 a. m. from Mannheim in the direction of Minsk, in occupied Poland.

"Their sealed wagons contain blue cross gas," the broadcast said. "Huge gas depots are concentrated in Minsk. Great quantities of poison gas have been sent also to Minsk during the last six weeks from Bitterfeld, Burghauson and Hamburg."

The broadcast urged underground operatives with the German army to see to it that "every soldier on the eastern front knows that the moment Hitler begins gas warfare in the east, the Allies will make gas raids from the west on German cities."

CARRIES 'FIRST' DOLLARS

DE WITT, Ill. —(U.P.)— Every day for the past 63 years, Ed Darby has carried the same four silver dollars in his pocket. The dollars, first he ever earned, have worn to about half their original size and the lettering has long since become unreadable. The edges of all four have worn sharp. There were five of the silver "cartwheels," says Darby, but one was lost last fall.

SENATE PLAN FACES HURDLE

Proposal For Allied Nations Council Goes To Foreign Relations Committee.

Pearl harbor non-interventionists, said a senate debate on such questions now "undoubtedly would endanger Allied unity."

The four authors of the new resolution—Sens. Lister Hill, (D., Ala.), Carl Hatch, (D., N. M.), Harold Burton, (R., O.), and Joseph H. Ball, (R., Minn.) —took a different view. They insisted that an expression now by the senate, which must ratify any peace treaty, would help to unify the United Nations.

President Roosevelt remained aloof from the controversy. Speaking only in general terms, he told a press conference yesterday that an effort was being made to increase conversations among the United Nations to achieve a better understanding with each other on all post-war problems. He did not elaborate on whether such conversations should be in a general Allied council, as proposed by the four senators, or in individual conferences such as now are being conducted during the visit of British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

DIVE ON ROYAL TURKEY

BATON ROUGE, La. —(U.P.)— A 40-pound turkey, saved by Gov. Sam H. Jones of Louisiana for a dinner for the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg, was fed by accident to 50 visiting realtors by a chef in the capital cafe and a last minute turkey hunt was necessary to get another bird for the royal dinner.

CHAPTER XVIII

"Who said anything about her being happy?" Freda thought.

Bill said, "You must think I've been an awful heel."

She stopped still and looked up at him. "I'm not thinking that you're a heel at all, Bill," she said. "But I am thinking that you are a man coming out of a fever. I had a high fever once just after little Ian was born. I had the craziest thoughts and sensations. I was crazy. But one night the fever broke and the next morning I woke up with a clear head. It was like being dead and being in hell and then coming back to my good life again. I've complained a lot less since then. I've wanted a lot less and I've been a lot more tolerant of other people. Because that morning I knew I was a lucky woman. I knew I had everything in the world to make a woman happy. I had Ian and my son and ever since then they have been my whole world."

"I'm sorry for you, Bill. What a pity you couldn't look at Evelyn and admire her as one admires a beautiful, inanimate thing without wanting to possess it. You've traded understanding and sympathy and companionship and a million other little things that would have enriched you for the rest of your life for a beautiful thing! Bill, you're a fool if you think that passion will last. Because passion is bound to die. Passion doesn't hold a marriage together, but sympathy and understanding and companionship and those million little things do. You have only to look into the eyes of a father looking at his child to know the greater thing you sacrificed.

"No, you're not a heel. You're a man I like a lot. And you've been honest with everyone except yourself. You're not a heel. You're a fool. Only a fool doesn't know the real from the false. Evelyn isn't your wife, Bill. She never has been your wife and she will never be your wife and she will never be the mother of your child. Evelyn is only your mistress."

Shaking with a cold fury, she turned and left him.

Bill stood still, hearing the sound of her tall gold heels hurrying away from him.

He felt as though he had been hit squarely between the eyes with the truth. With the ghastly truth that he had not faced, but which had been slowly, insidiously creeping into his consciousness and which he knew that someday he must face. The truth about Evelyn and him, the frightening truth that he could not go back, that no one can ever go back, that he had made a mistake so big and so involved that there was no way to save Evelyn and him from the most tragic of all man-woman relationships — all passion spent, leaving nothing. His throat ached.

You can never go back except in your thoughts. And to go back to the time preceding the divorce was to see himself as a man he did not know, a man devoid of reason, a man in a fever. Only until now did he realize how much he had hurt Carol and how necessary she had been to him in the thousand and one little ways in which Evelyn had failed.

He thought, "This is all because Evelyn forgot to pack my dress shirt. That's what started the thinking. And Freda made me go on."

Evelyn had not packed his dress shirt and he had lost his temper while dressing tonight. "Why in hell didn't you bring it?" he had demanded in the small, hot cabin. "You knew I had to have it for tonight." And Evelyn had shrugged and said, "Why, Bill, I simply forgot it. Borrow one from Tom." In the end he had had to borrow Tom's which was too large and made his feel sloppy.

Evelyn had not packed his shirt and by her forgetfulness of what seeming inconsequential thing, he had begun to think of things he had tried not to think about.

When with the natural instinct to blame another, he began to blame Evelyn for the divorce, he knew he was being unfair. Had she pursued him? Had she thrown herself at him? Had she suggested the divorce and their marriage? No. Evelyn had simply accepted that for which he had paved the way and at what cost to Carol he was only beginning to suspect.

He thought, "It's just because I'm all out of sorts tonight over that damned shirt. I'll go back and try to forget the whole thing."

Straightening, he lighted a cigaret and walked rather briskly down the pier. But his thoughts wouldn't let him go back to the dance. His thoughts pursued him. Dragging his steps now, pulling down his shoulders and finally stopping him altogether. . . . He stood still and looked down the water at the chain of lights and let his thoughts nibble at him.

"Evelyn has failed," he thought. "No, that's not fair. I've failed. She hasn't been like Carol and Carol set a standard Evelyn couldn't live up to. It's unfair of me to think that two women can be alike.

"What does a successful marriage boil down to? What makes it tick? Not holding hands and kissing but—but packing a man's shirt when he needs it and having his meals on time and managing money so that you don't wonder about it, but know that she has stretched it as far as it will go. . . . It's reminding you that your insurance is due and that the office called when you were playing golf and that you've got to play down to the boss' wife. . . . It's those things, those darned little things that make up the routine of a man's life, these same little things that Evelyn doesn't understand."

His earnest hope that Evelyn and Thelma would be great friends he had seen smashed almost from the very beginning. Evelyn had said something thoughtlessly wrong and Thelma had been made to feel small. He knew that Thelma had been made to feel that she had come far in the world for one who had begun so small. Evelyn had said, "But, of course, women like you who have worked have ideas entirely different from mine. Our backgrounds have been so different."

From that moment on he had been tensely on guard whenever they were together, trying to listen to Tom all the while he was certain he must slip in a pleasant word now and then to ease the fraction between the two wives. Then very carefully he had explained the situation to Evelyn who had looked quite shocked and sorry and had said, "But, Bill, I've been very sweet to Thelma. Really, I have been. I haven't done the slightest thing to offend her." It was impossible to explain to Evelyn that she consistently irritated Thelma just by being herself.

Now his job worried him, knowing Thelma's strong influence upon Tom. Thelma would speak of her acute dislike for Evelyn and Tom would take measures. Very subtly of course. But Tom never refused his wife anything. Maybe it would be in the nature of a demotion or maybe he would be fired altogether.

What would he do? In a spasm of generosity because he had wanted no delay about the divorce he had settled upon Carol almost the whole of his inheritance, thinking that he and Evelyn could live quite comfortably on his calary even with Carol's alimony coming out of it monthly. He was sure to get increases all along. But he had found Evelyn admittedly incapable of handling money.

She had said, "Bill, just let me charge everything. I'm sure I'd be no good with a checking account of my own." But the bills! He wondered how Carol had managed on the allowance he had given her to run the house, entertain guests and clothe herself. It seemed so small by comparison to what Evelyn had been spending. But what he did understand and that very regretfully was that he, for the first time in his life, was living far beyond his means with the frightening prospect of losing his job or taking a demotion and a "cut," all because Evelyn was simply being herself!

Funny, it had occurred to him only recently that Evelyn had no sense of humor. Or maybe, he thought, one as well-born as Evelyn doesn't see the funny sides of things as he saw them.

He knew, too, with shame, Evelyn's beauty had not been her whole attraction. Ambitious, he had been equally fascinated by the surroundings in which she lived with Charlotte and Dick and with her cosmopolitan background. The boy who had begun as a twenty-five-dollar a week clerk had been lifted into a world where people casually spoke of titled foreigners as friends and to whom crossing the Atlantic, before the war, had been at least an annual and not particularly exciting event.

He had stepped into that world, but he had not attained it. He had peeked in with Charlotte and Dick this summer, feeling distinctly uncomfortable when they lasped into French with the titled refugee visitor, a man who had known Evelyn in her European days and who seemed to regard Bill as one of those rich, unimaginative American husbands necessary for a beautiful woman's upkeep, but not for her emotional satisfaction. Bill had felt his disdain sharply. Not that Charlotte and Dick had not been decent. Dick had said, "You don't know foreigners, Bill." Yes, he had peeked into that world. He didn't want any part of it now.

But he had a part of it. He had Evelyn.

Why couldn't he just look at the lights on the river and not think of those first years with Carol? The memories crowded together, they were so sweet in remembrance! Carol cooking in the tiny kitchenette . . . Carol laughing at his jokes . . . Carol saving dimes for his Christmas present . . . Carol and he walking to a cheap movie, their only outside diversion those first lean years. She had created beauty where there was no beauty. She had found fun and laughter in struggle. She had made dollars from pennies. She had made graceless living gracious. She had said, "I don't want too much money, Bill. It might change us. We might not like to do the little things we do now—walk to places and make up our own jokes and live closely because we haven't many friends and we have to be everything to each other."

He had not dreamed during those struggling days that one day he would look back upon them, remember them as sweet and desperately want them back.

PARENTS WHO LOST 5 SONS IN NAVY TAKE DEATHS HEROICALLY

By ERWIN D. SIAS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

WATERLOO, Ia.—In a small weather-beaten home at Waterloo, Ia., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Sullivan, whose five stalwart sailor sons went down with the Juneau, today have faith that the forces of Hitler and Hirohito will be defeated and that the lives of their boys will not be given in vain.

Tragedy struck hard in the Sullivan home, harder than ever before in the history of the United States navy. For nowhere in the annals of our fighting fleet is there a comparable loss.

At 7 a. m. of a Tuesday morning, Thomas F. Sullivan, 59-year-old Central railroad freight conductor, was fixing his lunch in the kitchen before he left for his morning's run. He frequently arises early and goes about his work quietly so that the other members of the family may sleep.

But on this particular morning, Sullivan heard a car stop out in front of the house, heard footsteps on the porch and a knock on the door.

To Thomas Sullivan it meant but one thing. "I knew what they were going to say," he declared.

Sullivan called the rest of the family—his wife, his daughter Genevieve, 25, and Katherine, wife of Albert, their youngest boy—and listened to the message read by the navy officers from Des Moines.

Life went on as usual, however, at the Sullivan home. Thomas, the father, started off to work and was aboard his train at 7:45 a. m., just 30 minutes after he heard official navy word that his five sons were "missing in acton."

But the report "missing in action" left hope for the family that the boys might still be alive. Before long, however, letters, wires and cards began to arrive from friends of the five sailor brothers—George, 28, Francis, 27, Joseph, 24, Madison, 23 and Albert, 20.

One of them was from Lester E. Zook a Nebraska youth who had known the boys at sea. Zook's letter said that George had died on a raft and that the other four boys had gone down with their ship.

Mrs. Sullivan cried softly when she read the letter.

"We still hope and pray that there still might have been a chance that he may have been wrong about the four, but I doubt that he was," Mrs. Sullivan said.

"My boys always wrote me to 'keep my chin up,'" she added. "That is what I will try to do."

The Sullivan family, Irish Catholics and staunch church-goers, that night went to the little chapel at nearby St. Mary's parochial school where her five sons had studied, and lighted candles for their boys and said a prayer.

"There isn't anything which has done quite so much for me as coming here," Mrs. Sullivan said as she left the chapel.

"We would rather not have any memorial services for our boys until we are notified officially of their death," Mrs. Sullivan said.

Several organizations have discussed plans for memorial services.

Albert's young wife, and her son Jim, will remain with the Sullivans. Katherine, who was 17 when she married Albert, remained in her room with Jimmy the day the bad news came. All the other boys were single. Joseph was engaged to Margaret Jaros, 23-year-old Pittsburgh girl who wrote to him after she saw his picture in a newspaper. Margaret went to Waterloo to be with the family and help console Mrs. Sullivan.

"Everything I ever hoped to have went down with that ship," the Pittsburgh girl said.

Genevieve is the only child remaining in the Sullivan family of six children. She is engaged to Sgt. Russell Murphy of Elma, Ia., who is in the army. They will marry after the war is over, according to Genevieve.

NO MORE TRICKS

Commando Game Too Much For Art Store Executive.

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—Commandos are fine against the enemy, but George Bader, art store executive, would rather not play around with them.

He was the victim of just one commando trick and it took him two weeks to recover. A playful friend, demonstrating the tactics to him, flipped a scarf around his neck and pulled it tight. The scarf's pressure on a nerve center at the back of his neck caused Bader to have a personal blackout and he dropped to the floor. The result was three stitches in Bader's nose, a slight concussion and two weeks in bed.

Commando tricks are all right, he says, but from now on he'll just watch them.

DOG PREFERS TO CHASE RABBITS

PIQUA—(INS)—A solution to the problem of many chicken farmers of how to stop a pet dog from chasing and eating the fowl is advanced by L. A. Wilson of Ludlow Falls.

Wilson, beset with the problem, first tried tieing the dog but found upon releasing it that renewed chasing resulted and that punishment seemed to have no permanent effect.

Then one day the dog chased a rabbit in the woods and caught it. The dog found the chase more exciting and started to look for more. Encouraging the hunts, Wilson found that the dog now hardly looks at a chicken, and says he hasn't lost one in months.

FRIENDS HELP

NEW LEBANON, O.—(INS)—Mr. and Mrs. John Heindle, of New Lebanon, whose home burned recently, resulting in the death of their four children and a nurse-girl, find they are surrounded by real friends and neighbors.

Fellow workers and neighbors first got together and raised a fund of $1,000 to aid in the rehabilitation of the family. Then neighbors met at the scene of the fire, armed with axes and shovels and bringing trucks, and cleared up the ruins of the two-story frame building. A new building is expected to be started soon on the site.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD OHIO, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17, 1943.

And just to think! Women were once referred to as the "weaker sex."

"You can't fool all of the people all of the time"—but a majority will answer the purpose just about as well.

Now that income tax reports are out of the way, there's still two weeks left in which to list personal taxes and get a new automobile license sticker.

Remember Dimout Tomorrow Night

ENCOURAGED by the fine co-operation given by Mansfield residents during the four sectional dimouts last week, the local civilian defense organization is looking forward to tomorrow night's city-wide dimout test with confidence that requirements are so well understood, and public interest sufficiently great, to assure a 20-minute period of darkness in all homes, business places, office buildings and non-war industries.

As in the four sectional tests, the time is set for 9 o'clock, which gives opportunity to shut off radios and stop other noises in homes, so as to make sure that sirens can be heard even when doors and windows are closed.

It is again being emphasized that persons who plan to be away from home during the dimout period make sure to extinguish lights before leaving; that motorists on the streets show only dim lights, and that persons required to be out of doors refrain from lighting matches or smoking during the dimout.

Observation of last week's dimouts demonstrated the alertness of air raid wardens in getting on the job instantly when the sirens sound and in making a thorough check of conditions in the area to which each is assigned.

As this city-wide dimout is to lead up to readiness for an approaching state blackout test, it may be hoped that no flaws will appear in tomorrow night's program.

Measure In Lives, Not Dollars

ALMOST unanimous action by the Ohio legislature in extending an invitation to Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker to address that body is likely to meet with at least as a high a percentage of approval by the people of Ohio, who are as interested in what Capt. Rickenbacker is doing in behalf of the national war effort as are residents of other states.

The extent to which Capt. Rickenbacker, through his earnest appeals, has gained the support of workers in his crusade against strikes, absenteeism and slowdowns in war industries is sufficient proof of the value of the work he has been doing since his return home after harrowing experiences while afloat in a lifeboat in the Pacific ocean and his later trip to Far Eastern battle fronts.

A recent instance was presentation of a scroll signed by 7,000 Pacific coast war workers, their wives and children, pledging to do all in their power to avert absenteeism and slowdowns.

It is unfortunate that Rickenbacker's emphasis on the need of all-out effort by industrial workers, as essential to winning the war, has been interpreted in some quarters as an attack on organized labor, and that he was referred to by one Ohio legislator as a "labor baiter."

Urging the vital importance of not losing any time in producing to meet war needs, Rickenbacker said in a speech in Indianapolis a few days ago: "Every hour, day, week and month that we shorten the time it takes us to win can be measured in the lives of American boys . . . who will not be killed because the war will be won that much sooner."

Then he added: "Perhaps now you understand better why I am urging you to eliminate the incompetents in government, the racketeers in labor, the 'patrioteers' in industry—all those whose objective is greedy, grasping, selfish personal gain. Their measure is the dollar. Mine is the lives of American boys and the preservation of a decent democracy."

There is always a need, in fairly considering the great American institution broadly known as "organized labor," to distinguish between the laudable purposes of the millions of men and women who hold membership in various unions and the racketeering proclivities of some of the self-seeking leaders and parasitical agitators and disturbers who have infiltrated into these organizations.

It is this line of demarcation that Capt. Rickenbacker takes care to observe in whatever criticism of laggard workers he has thus far expressed, and, as he puts it: "In attacking them I am voicing the sentiment of millions of fathers and mothers, the lives of whose boys are at stake."

Survival of the Circus

DESPITE the many changes made necessary by war, there are still some vestiges left of "old institutions," which may have been crude in spots, but which had their good points. News from Sarasota, Fla., is that "war or no war, the circus will carry on."

It is also revealed that the Ringling Brothers' outfit, which hibernates down there, is going old-fashioned. Advance notices assure the fans that, while of course there will be gorgeous scenes and beautiful and talented ladies on the job, they will not monopolize attention so much. There is a trend back toward the older and simpler days, stressing clowns and elephants, peanuts and sawdust.

Asiatics Suspicious of 'Charter'

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

THE ABSOLUTE NECESSITY of maintaining complete understanding among the important Allied governments (which means a full exchange of information), as emphasized by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, becomes clear when one gets outside the orbit of Anglo-American agreement.

Geography, and other even more vital factors, have put the remaining members of the big four—Russia and China—rather far afield. It is perhaps natural that at times they should view the war obelisk from different sides.

Thus we have Vice President Wallace expressing the grave concern that "unless the western democracies and Russia come to a satisfactory understanding before this war ends, I very much fear that world war No. 3 will be inevitable." And China is beset with many doubts, as I reported from Bombay last January after visiting Chungking.

Not only in China but in India, and in smaller eastern countries, there is anxious speculation whether the war is going to demonstrate that east is east and west is west, and that the relationship between the two is going to be on this basis of aloofness.

The Orient, which wants to regard the Atlantic charter as the pillar of fire to lead it to a new world is quietly expressing much uncertainty as to its real significance.

I was shocked to find the widespread fear that the charter may be designed only for the "white races" and that it doesn't apply to Asiatics. Some of the more suspicious minds even say they believe Britain and America are planning to exploit the Orient after the war.

So far as the United States is concerned, there is no strong disposition to charge her with having ulterior motives. The query is being raised, however, whether she will have the tenacity to carry out the terms of the charter. A lot of people in the Orient are worrying for fear America will retire to isolation.

But Britain and America aren't alone doubtful quantities from the Oriental standpoint. Russia also is suspect, though she remains an enigma to the east, as she does to many in the western world.

NOW most of this doubt, and fear and suspicion is due to lack of understanding. When I was in Chungking a considerable number of publishers and other prominent newspaper men gave me a tea party at which they put me on the carpet for a grilling in regard to such searching questions as are cited above.

The were anxious to get the truth, but it was clear that in many particulars they were far from having a correct picture of their western allies. They lacked the true factors.

Of course the uncertainties which are troubling Allied minds aren't confined to post-war problems. We are reminded of that daily by the problems which grow out of questions of supply and grand strategy.

Russia wants that second front, and China feels she has been left out in the cold through the policy of making Hitler enemy No. 1.

Will Russia expect to retain foreign soil for defensive purposes?

Will the other Allies need bases in various parts of the world?

Will subject peoples be given their independence under the Atlantic charter if they want it?

There are many other burning issues to be settled sooner or later. If we wait until after the war to deal with them, it indeed may result in another conflict, as the signs now read.

CORRECTION

In a recent editorial mention of the growth of Lumbermens Mutual Insurance company an error occurred in the sentence which was intended to say that assets of the company are now approaching the FOUR MILLION mark. This appeared in print as "four hundred million"—which was much too much, even in these days of astronomical figures.

Timely Editorial

Shadow of a Doubt.

Presumably there are men—earnest, capable men—who will read every word of the new 640-page plan to give security to everybody that President Roosevelt has sent to congress.

They will weigh all the pros and cons of the proposals contained in the report and come forth in due time with well considered opinions. This is the way great decisions are arrived at under the system of free speech.

Meanwhile, the rest of us, who lack both time and inclination to do all that reading, let alone the background to pass judgment on his super-super-New Deal for one and all, are chiefly interested in one thing only: How does the thing get paid for?

Apparently, there is no answer; at least none is mentioned in the abstracts. This is the glaring weakness of plans in general. They show a disturbing tendency to ignore financial problems, apparently on the assumption that all who insist on paying attention to them are unimaginative. Perhaps so, but ultimately the unimaginative souls are called on to produce that wherewithal in some form or other and are entitled to their doubts. — Canton Repository.

Dave Boone Says:

A HEIFER took a running dive into an outdoor swimming pool on a New York farm and nearly drowned before it could be hauled out. All sorts of reasons are being advanced. My hunch is that she was just nervous about the meat rationing.

Maybe she understood the critical shortage, heard La Guardia warn about meat racketeers and got scared when she heard footsteps behind a tree.

I see where some senators are all ready with a five-point program to take care of things after the war ends. Such a plan is a good thing to have, but too much talk about it sure tends to make the people forget that the war ain't won yet.

The plan sets up another League of Nations. The last one was a pretty hypocritical body. Its lack of backbone did plenty to bring on the new conflict. But it's proposed to keep a standing army and navy on the job to back up a new league.

* * *

If a League of Nations is to get any obedience it has got to have force behind it, but you can hear the storm rising now over the standing army idea. After this war is over the rush to get home is going to be terrific.

Annual Tribute To Ireland's Patron Saint

By JEAN NEWTON

I bind to myself today
God's Power to guide me,
God's Might to uphold me,
God's Wisdom to teach me
God's Eye to watch over me,
God's Ear to hear me,
God's Word to give me speech,
God's Hand to guide me,
God's Way to lie before me,
God's Shield to shelter me,
God's Host to secure me,
Against the snares of demons,
Against the seductions of vices,
Against the lusts of nature,
Against everyone who meditates injury to me,
Whether far or near,
Whether few or with many.

IT IS FROM the beautiful prayer of Saint Patrick, popularly known at Saint Patrick's Breast-Plate, a literal translation from the old Irish text, but as fresh, as vital, as needful today, as it was over fifteen hundred years ago when the patron saint of Eire composed it in preparation for his victory over paganism.

The life of Saint Patrick reads like a Horatio Alger saga.

Born in Scotland of parents of great social distinction, when he was sixteen he was kidnaped by marauders and sold as a slave to an Irish chieftain and druidical priest, for whom he was set to tending flocks.

Blood will tell—life in the open heightened the youngster's religious and mystic bent—and, as he relates in his noted Confessio, "The love of God . . . increased in me more and more, and the faith grew in me . . . so that whilst in the woods and on the mountain . . . I was roused to prayer and I felt no hurt . . . whether there was snow or ice or rain . . . because the spirit was then fervent within me."

After six years of captivity, St. Patrick escaped to return twenty-five years later the emissary of the Pope, "with the mission of gathering the Irish race into one fold of Christ"; and one of his first acts was to pay his former master for his ransom!

The stories surrounding Saint Patrick are many and as various as anyone could desire; particularly interesting is the one concerning his association with March 17th, about which there seems to be some dispute.

According to one version, March 17th is the anniversary of Saint Patrick's death—he is said to have passed away on March 17, 461; but the explanation we prefer is this:

Saint Patrick was born on the year 389 at midnight on the 8th of March, say some; others maintain vehemently it was on the morning of the 9th that he first saw the day.

'Good Neighbor' Tour By Wallace Causes State Department Worry

WASHINGTON—Inside fact about Vice President Wallace's Good Neighbor pilgrimage to South America is that he was invited to take the trip a year ago, but the state department frowned it down.

In February, 1942, Chile first extended its invitation to Wallace. But it was not until February, 1943, that he accepted. In the interim, the state department didn't say yes or didn't say no.

One reason was the obvious one that we were waiting for Chile to break relations with the Axis. But another undisclosed reason was the fact that Wallace wanted to take his trip without any official trimmings. He wanted to do what he did in Mexico more than a year ago when he and Jim LeCron and their wives drove round the countryside in their own car like any tourists, and nobody knew he was the vice president-elect of the United States.

Wallace would like to do this on his present trip. He talks about having a good visit with "the boys," meaning the personnel of the Board of Economic Warfare of which he is chairman.

But the state department has diplomatically warned him that he won't have much time for that, and some top-hat formalities will be necessary.

The state department also is worried over Wallace's becoming involved in some of the intricate political problems of Latin America. Should a leader of the Apristas (Peruvian Indian party) slip up beside him while a photographer snapped their picture, it would almost cause a revolution in Peru. Or should he inspect the Bolivian tin mines where labor is ground down to less than starvation wages, the Bolivian government would suffer spasms.

So Henry, who loves people, who likes to see things first hand, may have to walk the chalk line. To help him walk it the state department is sending along its best adviser on Latin America, erudite Larry Duggan.

McKellar's Job Bill.

THERE is more than meets the eye behind bellicose Senator McKellar's bill to require all presidential appointments drawing $4,500 or over to be confirmed by the senate.

One thing which most people don't realize is that the bill is retroactive and would require senate confirmation for all appointments since 1936. This would mean that almost every Roosevelt appointee since then, even those serving in minor capacities, would come up for scrutiny by any political enemies they might have in the senate. The senate would have no time left to consider legislation.

Also the bill offers unique opportunities for heading off presidential candidates. Take, for instance, the position of Senator Van Nuys of Indiana, bitterly opposed to his fellow-Indianian Paul McNutt and anxious to thwart his presidential ambitions.

Senator Van Nuys is energetically for the McKellar bill. Why shouldn't he be? He could then review the jobs which Paul McNutt has given out to the following gentlemen from Indiana:

Dr. Frank H. Sparks, president of Wabash college, serving as director of the Bureau of Manpower Utilization.

Dr. Edward C. Elliott, president of Purdue university in charge of the college training program for WMC.

Fowler Harper, former dean of the Law School of Indiana university, now deputy chairman of the WMC.

Bernard D. Gavit, who succeeded Harper as dean of the Indiana law school, but has now followed him to Washington to become general counsel of the WMC.

However, there is little chance that Van Nuys will have a chance to purge the McNutt machine. For one thing, the Republicans are beginning to see the danger of the McKellar bill. Though it would embarrass Roosevelt, it would also embarrass the next Republican administration, and Republican senators today are cooly confident of victory.

Interviewing Washington.

SOME Democratic politicos who couldn't afford the time to do a Frank Walker swing around the country recently got a quick check on the nation by interviewing breath-taking Bob Gros, the California lecturer, who has interviewed more people in and out of Washington than most old timers. On this trip he squeezed in all but two of the cabinet, Madame Chiang Kai-shek, Willkie, Herbert Hoover, John L. Lewis, Lord Halifax, Litvinoff and a dozen others.

Administration big-wigs, including Harry Hopkins, seemed more anxious to interview him, plied him with questions about the sentiment of the American people. Gros reported that politically sentiment was bad, that isolationism was not dead by a long shot.

Gros summarized Washington personalities: Baruch the canniest; Henry Kaiser the greatest doer; Rickenbacker the greatest zealot; Hopkins and FDR the most charming, Manuel Quezon the most dynamic; and Rubber-Czar Jeffers the most hard boiled.

Where Eggs Class Among Luxuries; Embarrassing Moment to Meet a Friend.

SOMEWHERE IN NORTH AFRICA—The other night I met Lieut. Col. William Clark, a great tall, gaunt man from Princeton, N. J. Since the war started he has been in Australia, Africa, and twice in England. He was in France in the last war, and personally I think he's having the time of his life in this one. Col. Clark is a big-shot back home. He's judge of the Third circuit court of appeals in Philadelphia.

He's the guy who declared the prohibition amendment unconstitutional. It's beyond his powers, however, to create much drinkin' likker in this part of the world.

Judge Clark is liaison officer with the British army in Tunisia, right up where everything is hottest. He asked me if I'd put his name in the paper so his family would know he was all right. I said sure, and asked him what he wanted me to say about him.

"Oh," he said, "just say you met the damned old fool."

Okay Judge, you're the judge.

THE AVERAGE American soldier has been without eggs for a long time, and I for one can testify that we miss them very much.

The problem has been alleviated somewhat here on the desert. It seems the Arabs have eggs, so we go around and buy them up.

We foolish Americans have already raised the price to five francs apiece (about seven cents) but what do we care? Everybody has too much money anyhow, and when you reach our state an egg is practically golden.

I've been on two egg orgies within a week. One night Maj. Austin Berry, of Belding, Mich., bought 29 eggs from an Arab. Maj. Berry is a young squadron leader, and he has an appetite.

We took the eggs to an army kitchen and had them scrambled. Then Maj. Charles Coverley, Capt. Jack Traylor, Maj. Berry and myself ate all 29 eggs at one sitting, with nothing else whatever to go with them. That's an average of better than seven eggs apiece. True, I woke up at 2 a. m. with a historic stomach-ache, but what of it?

Undeterred, I tried it again three days later. Two of my Flying Fortress friends came past about 11 in the morning, and we went to the village market and scoured around sort of speakeasy-like until we found a guy with some eggs. We bought two dozen.

My fellow-gourmets were Lieut. Bill Condy, of Wilmette, Ill., a bomber pilot, and Lieut. Bob Wollard, of Clovis, N. M., a bombardier. We had the cook hardboil them, and then we went to my quarters and gorged ourselves. The three of us ate 24 eggs and 20 tangerines in half an hour flat. I'm getting this all down on paper quickly before the spasms set in.

WAY BACK in Oran, a soldier was telling me a funny experience he had. He was Warrant Officer Luke Corrigan, of Scranton, Pa.

It seems that a large bunch of American nurses were headed for the front and had to be outfitted right away.

Now Mr. Corrigan is in charge of one of the army's big warehouses, so it was his job to outfit the nurses. But army warehouses, it seems, don't carry such things as slips, step-ins, brassiers and what not. So Mr. Corrigan had to get himself an interpreter and go blushing all over Oran buying up dozens of these feminine items.

He completed his mission, and dashed to the train just before departure time. One nurse saw what he had, and grabbed at a box. Then others grabbed. The boxes flew open and the first thing Mr. Corrigan knew he looked like a Christmas tree very much bedecked with panties, undies and other pink unmentionables. Mr. Corrigan was very ill at ease.

As he just at that moment he heard a familiar voice saying "Well, Luke, I'll have to write home and tell your mother how you're fighting the war."

He turned around and it was a Scranton girl who lives just a few blocks from him at home. Her name was Helen Jeffers and she was a nurse too. Luke has been in the army two years and in all that time Helen Jeffers is the only person from home he's ever run onto. And she had to find him like that.

All ain't fair in peace or war.

A Farmer's Diary — By CALVIN A. BYERS

Victory Gardens

ON A RATHER fertile vacant lot, I saw two boys planning their Victory garden. Some farmer friend was going to plow this lot and five others near it. They must clean off the stones, old wire and other rubbish. Already these boys of eight and ten had piled a mighty heap of trash to burn when the dampness of some fine clear evening would keep the fire from spreading.

They used a rake and a broken-handled broad-tined fork to pick the stone. "Here," I heard the small one say, "we'd oughta plant our celery." He pointed to a hollow where black dirt showed.

"And on the higher ground, by the lilac bush," the other said, "it'll be a bully place for sweet corn."

As they were talking, a stray, tan mongrel hound came trotting by, stopped to foul the lilac bush. With one accord the two boys heaved loose stones at the surprised pup, and shouted "Saboteur! Such work as that will ruin our Victory garden!"

Down in the store that same afternoon, I saw a waiting anxious crowd about the seed counter. A little boy of five stepped up when his turn came and told the clerk he wanted onion seed, carrots, radishes and beets, "for my Vicky garden."

"How much, my boy?" the salesman wondered.

"The garden's about as big as two tables. I guess a cent's worth of each of 'em." Carefully the seeds were placed in four small envelopes and handed to the youthful gardener, who counted out four shiny coppers.

Then an old man, 90, proud to tell his age, bought seeds for a full half acre.

"But you don't intend to do all that work yourself?" the clerk inquired, surprised.

"I've lived through two wars," the old man said. "I've got six grandsons in this one—and eight more who may go. I'm countin' on raisin' enough o' food for the ones that's left, so there'll be more to ship to the boys over there." A stranger helped the old man with his packages until he had stepped safely to the street.

A better spirit of fine community living will grow, with the vegetables and flowers, in the Victory gardens. Young and old will meet and have a common interest—a healthy rivalry, a mutual hope and joy when plants begin to grow and buds to open. Even if the project falls far short of the harvest dreamed of, for the lark's song at early dawn, the close touch of the rich moist earth, the splendid privilege of growing what one eats, by the sweat of his own brow, the knowledge of being shoulder to shoulder with others in the march toward the food goals of the nation—all these things will be, in themselves, a garden victory.

TOURIST CLUB HEARS WORKS OF S. C. FOSTER

Mrs. Herman Gilbert Presents Interesting Paper at Women's Club; Mrs. G. J. Kochenderfer and Mrs. Sidney Palmer, Hostesses.

MEMBERS of the Tourist club and six guests assembled at the Women's Club Tuesday for a 1 o'clock luncheon and sealed program, presented by Mrs. Herman Gilbert.

Guests, welcomed by Mrs. Dimon Herring, president of the organization, were Mrs. James Bailey, Mrs. W. W. Crouch, Mrs. R. L. Foulke, Mrs. W. H. Gugler, Mrs. Arthur C. Kell and Mrs. Earle K. Troll. Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. G. J. Kochenderfer and Mrs. Sidney Palmer.

"Stephen Collins Foster, America's Greatest and Most Beloved Song Writer" was the topic of the meeting, the paper of which was written and presented by Mrs. Gilbert. In her biographical data, the speaker discussed Foster's early native musical talent displayed by compositions written at the ages of 14 and 18.

A description was given of "Federal Hall," Bardstown, Ky., the home of the Rowan family, who were the inspiration for "My Old Kentucky Home." "Jeannie. With the Light Brown Hair" was written especially for Jane McDowell, a renowned beauty, who became Foster's wife. This song, with "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," written in memory of Foster's mother and "Beautiful Dreamer," his last composition, comprise Foster's sentimental ballads.

Foster's plantation melodies portray one race of people, one section of country and one person in history. His fame lives on in "Old Folks at Home," "Massa's In De Cold Cold Ground." "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Old Black Joe," written in memory of an old Negro servant.

"Oh, Susanna," the song of the California "gold rush" in 1849 and "Camptown Races" portray a lighter vein and sense of humor possessed by Foster.

Stephen Foster produced more than 200 original songs and compositions in which he combined the qualities of poetry, melody, simplicity and sincerity, that form a remarkable contribution to the music of our nation and all mankind.

Foster was elected to the Hall of Fame, the first musician among 72 other Americans. For several years, Joseph Kirby Lilly, of Indianapolis, Ind., was a leading collector of material relating to the life and works of Stephen Foster His valuable collection, entitled "Collection of Fosteriana," now comprising more than 10 000 separate items, is at the University of Pittsburgh, as a memorial for view and study by American people.

Mrs. Gilbert, Mrs. Charles Ray and Mrs. C. C. Wadsworth sang several of Foster's compositions. Piano accompaniment was furnished by Mrs. Gilbert The program was brought to a close by group singing of several of the songs created by the genius of Foster to express universal thoughts and emotions

The next meeting scheduled for the Tourist club will be held at the home of Mrs. W S Valmore, Cook road, March 30.

41st Anniversary Observed by Mr., Mrs. Blackman

A family party this evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Blackman, 119 Arthur avenue, will be held in observance of the 41st wedding anniversary of the couple.

Mr. Blackman, the son of Mr and Mrs. J. W. Blackman, and Mrs. Blackman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Siefley of this city, were united in marriage in Toledo, where Mr. Blackman was making his home at that time.

Mr. and Mrs. Blackman are the parents of two daughters, Mrs. Bessie Rubino and Miss Mabel Blackman, and the grandparents of two children. Robert Lace, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Blackman is scheduled to leave for the armed forces Thursday, March 18.

Chapeaux Worn at "Teasing Angle"

By SUSAN BARDEN
International Illustrated News Writer.

THE ADVANCED news on hats for the spring of 1943 is that they have been made with the definite idea of being morale builders both for the wearer and onlooker.

At a recent showing of the collection of John Frederics this formula for lifting the spirits was brought out in a smart and beautiful way.

Apparently hats are roving this season. They can sit anywhere on the head. Since half the women sweep up their hair and the other half let it frisk about their necks and faces, where to park the hat needs direction Some are worn in back of a pompadour and others in front of it, wherever it is most becoming. There is one place to put a hat—square on the center of the back of the head—which these designers call "the teasing angle." It certainly makes women look absurdly young.

Tricky Grip Keeps Hat On.

As the milliners must not only co-ordinate hair and hat, but must contrive to make the latter stay on the head, these experts invented a tricky mechanical grip which balances the hat wherever poised, front, back or center. Deep or shallow, the barette hugs hat to hair. And through the pompadour, there are sizable hairpins and fantasy combs whose thrust holds hats firm.

The latest chapeaux are bright with color, and many take their inspiration from the garden and many veils are sprigged with buds and leaves For fabrics the milliners are using braids, rough, shiny and smooth, as well as straws, felts, cottons, and any other American materials that are available and appropriate.

The three models shown in the above photographs are striking examples of the smartness and gaiety of the new headgear.

In Black and White.

The black and white straw has a shiny finish and is made in a coolie shape. It has a tiny manipulated crown that goes to a point, and black grosgrain cord trimming.

The Tanagra bankkok straw hat, below, has a large rolled brim, a small square topped crown, and is reminiscent of the Gay 90's with its luxurious use of maline over the brim which ends in long streamers that can be draped under the chin and around the neck.

The third hat is made of felt in a lovely and becoming caramel shade.

It has a large brim and a high narrow crown. It has brown marquisette insert in the brim and around the crown, with a tailored bow in the direct center front.

ASHLAND GIRL WEDS LIEUT. R. L. CHAPMAN

Miss Mary Jane Lewis Wed to Lieut. Richard Lee Chapman In Quiet Ceremony Tuesday Rev. R. D. Wingert Officiates.

BEFORE an improvised altar of ferns, white carnations and snapdragons, lighted on either side by candelabra, Miss Mary Jane Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Lewis, became the bride of Lieutenant Richard Lee Chapman at 3:30 Tuesday afternoon.

The ceremony was read by Rev. R. D. Wingert, pastor of the Federated church of Nankin, before members of the immediate families of the couple, and one out-of-town guest, Mrs. R. I. Winters of Lakewood, O.

Miss Alice Lewis of Detroit, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor, and Thomas Miller of this city was best man for Lieut. Chapman.

The bride chose a light gray suit with white accessories for her wedding. She wore a shoulder corsage of orchids. The maid of honor wore a corsage of yellow roses with her red and white ensemble.

Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Chapman both wore navy frocks with white accessories and corsages of gardenias.

A wedding dinner with appropriate appointments was served at 6 o'clock at "The Woods" on the Mansfield-Ashland road.

The former Miss Chapman is a graduate of Ashland high school and Ashland college. She has been employed as a teacher for the past two years at the Hayesville high school.

Lieut. Chapman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Chapman, 620 Scholl road, is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and Ohio university at Athens. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. Before his induction into the army, he was employed in the office of the Ohio Brass company. On March 10 he received his commission as second lieutenant when he graduated from the officers' candidate school at the University of Florida at Gainesville, Fla.

Lieut. and Mrs. Chapman left Tuesday night for a short wedding trip, after which Lieut. Chapman will report to Fort Hayes for assignment. Mrs. Chapman will finish the school year in Hayesville before joining her husband.

Mrs. McMichael Has Bible Class

Mrs. Raymond McMichael entertained members of the Wayside Bible class Tuesday night at which Mrs. R. E. Snider, president of the organization, was in charge of the business session.

Fourteen members and one guest, Mrs. Carrico, were in attendance at the meeting. Mrs. Guy Kaufman, Mrs. J. H. O'Hail and Mrs. G. B. Ray were in charge of the lesson study from the twelfth chapter of Luke.

Mrs. O'Hail, North Benton street will be hostess at the April 1 meeting.

HAS CARD PARTY.

The Temple Emanuel Sisterhood held a card party Tuesday night at the temple on Second street with Mrs. J. Bein and Mrs. J. Haupt as hostesses. Coffee and dessert were served late in the evening. The next meeting will be held April 6 with Mrs. A. Smith and Mrs. M. Bachman as hostesses.

Tuesday Club Has Meet With Mrs. A. Strickler

Mrs. Albert T. Strickler was hostess, Tuesday afternoon, to 16 members and three guests, Mrs. Harro Woltmann, Mrs. Arthur Taylor and Mrs. Hazel Crume of Chicago, when the Tuesday Book club met at her home, Andover road for a salad luncheon.

The table was centered with a silver bowl of delphinium, iris and daffodils. Mrs. William Weldon, jr., and Mrs. Crume presided at the table.

"Head Hunting in the Solomon Islands" by Carol Mytinger, was reviewed by Mrs. Joseph MacLean. The book tells of the experiences of artists who hunted for interesting natives in the Solomon Islands, whose heads they painted.

The next meeting will be held March 30 with Mrs. Weldon, jr., at her home on Davis road.

Recent Bride Feted at Shower

Mrs. Edward G. Varga, the former Violet O'Brien, was honored Tuesday night with a miscellaneous shower in the home of Miss Florence Jurliff, 502 Grace street, by members of the Boogie Woogie club.

The honoree received many gifts and was presented a gift by the club.

Five hundred was played and prizes were won by Mrs. Varga and Mrs. D. Hageman. Luncheon was served at a long table decorated with a cake and St. Patrick decorations. Favors were presented to each guest.

Miss Dorothy Stahl was a guest at the affair.

The next meeting of the club will be announced later.

ound Diet or Children lot Expensive

y GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Children don't have to have althy parents in order to have od diets; neither does a high ome always guarantee well-ected diets.

f you will examine the plan for osing good diets on a low in-ne, made available by the Bu-u of Home Economics of the S. department of labor, you ll find that milk is the first m.

This plan calls for 6 small serv-gs of lean meat, fish or poultry ry week; a dish of cereal once twice a day; bread in some way every meal; a dessert once a , when desired Some of the eals should be of whole grain. ien white flour is used it should ve been "enriched" You can y "enriched" flour now at prac-ally any good food store.

Using this low-cost plan for a nily of two parents, a boy 14 1 girl of 11, the marketing list a week would look about as lows:

Milk, 22 quarts, potatoes and eet potatoes, 18 pounds; dried ins, peas and nuts, 2 pounds; amin C-rich foods, such as to-toes, citrus food, raw cabbage, pounds, leafy, green, yellow getables, 8¾ pounds; other veg-bles and fruits, 8½ pounds; gs, 15; lean meat, fish, poultry, pounds; flour and cereals, ½ pounds; fats, about 3 pounds, gar, about 4 pounds—counting ite, brown, maple sugars and ups, molasses, jellies, pre-ves and candies.

Of course you can't get a lot variety when you hold to this -cost plan. But you can in-duce variety in your cooking l cook wisely and economical-

Since so many of the vita-ns and minerals are destroyed careless cooking and drained n the kitchen sink the Bu-u of Home Economics offers housewives and mothers the owing rules:

When you boil foods, raise the mperature to the boiling point rapidly as possible. Use as le water as possible. Save the ter in which vegetables have n cooked Use it in making ces, sauces and soups Don't soda in cooking green vege-les Don't stir air into foods le they are cooking Before ting cooked food through a e, let it cool When short cook-methods are feasible, avoid g cooking processes such as stewing Start cooking frozen foods while they are still frozen Serve raw frozen foods immedi-ately after thawing. After food is cooked, serve it at once. Prepare chopped fruit and vegetable sal-ads just before you serve them.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q My eight-year-old boy some-times comes in a bit bruised from fights with other boys Should I forbid him to fight?

A No encourage him to stand up in self-defense with his fists Dad or some more skilled person should teach this boy how to use his fists well He also should learn never to start a quarrel or fight

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

There was a twinge of disapproval of my levity in my father's eyes but Philip Veritzen relaxed and his anger at Milner seemed completely gone as he turned to me with a twinkle in his eyes.

'By all means release the guest of honor,' he said 'That is, if his jailer approves"

Awed By Royalty.

"Oh, that, of course," I said, glad of a reason to smile, for I had fresh cause for mirth in his unconscious betrayal of cordial approval of a renewal of the marriage engagement between Olina and Georges. His awe of royalty, stemming from his own bar sinister relationship to the royal family of Transylvania, would be more than ever appeased by a union of his step-daughter with even a dethroned and fugitive King of Trees.

I knocked at the door of the room to which we had banished Georges and Olina, and at once heard the click of the key in the lock Then the door swung open and Georges let Olina precede him into the living room

"I am sure you will not be disturbed again tonight, Georges," my father said

'Perhaps I'd enjoy being disturbed the same way again," Georges said with an audacious side glance at Olina 'I found being imprisoned most enjoyable"

'There is no law that I know of to prevent you going to jail voluntarily," my father said with a smile, then went to Olga.

Dicky Coming.

"My dear Olga," he said, "I am distressed that you should have had this interruption, and am sure there will be no more Now I hope you will have a most enjoyable evening."

"Oh, aren't you coming back?" she said in dismay "I knew you hadn't planned to come, but was hoping you had changed your mind"

'I wish I could," he said with patent sincerity 'but I am afraid it is impossible However, my son-in-law, Richard, is coming presently. He has just returned"

"How delightful!" she exclaimed. "But nobody can take your place So come back if you can, won't you, no matter how late? I'll save you some supper"

"If I can get back, you would better call it breakfast," he said smiling then turned to me.

"I'll send Richard right over," he said.

"Thank you," I said "Better have him stop on his way up and see if Noel and Mary have returned from the theater If so, ask him to tell them we are all here"

Worried About Noel.

"I'll do that," he promised, then left and Philip closed the door after him

"I wonder what is keeping Noel and Mary," Olga said, voicing a question in my own mind, although I feared that I knew the answer Noel must have renewed his demand that Mary change the unbecoming dress to which he had objected so strenuously

Philip Veritzen sent his regal wife a smiling glance, which to me had something vaguely disquieting in it.

"Mary is a star, remember," he said, "and it is a star's right to make an effective entrance, after the rest of the cast are in their places and the play has begun."

Americans And Their Obligations

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Speak it to him softly, for the dread news must be broken gradually—the post-war husband will have to be reeducated as a homemaker.

This isn't wishful thinking on the part of wives who bring home the bacon and cook it too Nor is it a thesis of the Thursday Evening Culture Club membership restricted to ladies.

Educators presented a plea for the new training of men at the conference on 'The American Woman and Her Responsibilities," held at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo, after a survey made of women graduates of 44 colleges and universities over a ten-year period, emphasized that one of woman's greatest barriers to progress she thinks, is man's 20th Century attitude toward her and the home

It wouldn't be nice or generous to blast away at father with all his shortcomings in the home, but the survey made by the 41 colleges indicated among other things, that men "are often intolerant naive, egocentric spoiled children in their roles as husbands and fathers They are not open minded to change and they resist every effort of their wives to improve different situations'

However the survey suggests it's the women themselves who are held responsible for this state of affairs Wives didn't catch 'em young enough Their shortcomings in the home are due to over-indulgence by their mothers

If man is not yet housebroke that is concerning his responsibilities in the home it's because he's not aware of changes in the old established order He must be made to feel he's a slacker, if he comes home, lights his pipe and concentrates on taking his ease, while his wife, after an equally hard day in office shop or factory, scurries around cooks the dinner she's bought on the way home puts it in the table and afterwards washes the dishes picks up the laundry and does other household chores

If the women are going to do anything about all this, they must remember the time to begin Junior's education as a family man is when he's learning to crawl But that's no answer, for it means she must concentrate even more in the job of running the home

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, March 18.

According to the stellar operations ruling this day, the accent may be placed upon the finer ideals rather than the purely commercial or materialistic, unless these vocations have to do with the promotion of cultural and entertaining preoccupations of life These may enjoy gain and satisfaction, with happy relations and warming contacts in all fields of endeavor It is a favorable time for striving after social and artistic pursuits and emotional desires

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a moderately successful, agreeable year, in which the pleasanter tides of life outrun the purely materialistic ambitions although these also progress. Affairs of youth, home and heart engage the major attention probably with many festivities in these relations. Beware petty intrigues.

A child born on this day, while warm, generous, and friendly, may be idealistic, with its main interests focused on cultural ends

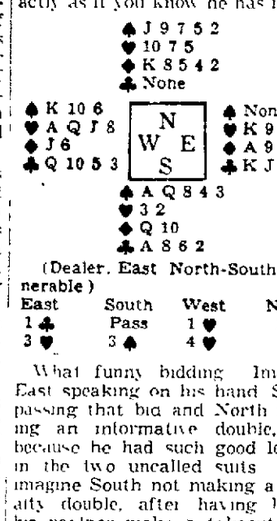
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

IT WORKS BOTH WAYS

Every declarer will upon occasion follow the rule of playing an otherwise hopeless hand exactly as if he had seen that a particular defender held a certain card or cards. That rule is just as important for the defense, even if the opportunities for it do not seem to be apparent as often If you reckon, however, that your side cannot beat the contract unless the player opposite you holds a certain card then by all means, if you want to qualify as a real rubber bridge player, treat the hand exactly as if you know he has it.



(Dealer. East North-South vulnerable)

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥	Dbl
3 ♥	3 ♠	4 ♥

What funny bidding Imagine East speaking on his hand South passing that big and North making an informative double, just because he had such good length in the two uncalled suits Also imagine South not making a penalty double, after having heard his partner make a takeout one A good deal of this bidding was due to the player's knowledge of one another's peculiarities and weaknesses

Despite his partner's spade bid, North made the odd lead of the diamond 4 West won that with the dummy's A and decided at once to ruff out his spades He led the heart 4 to the J ruffed the spade 6 with the heart 6 then led the club 4 both to drive out the A and get into his own hand for another spade ruff South took that with the A and led the 2 for North to ruff with the heart 7 Mr Impetuous North now hurriedly scored his diamond K – and the trick winning was over for his side No matter what he returned West got the rest

North should have played his partner for the diamond Q and instead of scoring his K on the sixth trick should have led low. The Q would have won and the ensuing club lead would have been ruffed by North for the setting trick Though North saw the 10 on the opening diamond lead and his partner therefore might have had the J left instead of the Q. this would only have enabled West to get an extra trick In other words North would have risked merely giving the declarer an extra trick in return for a chance to set him.

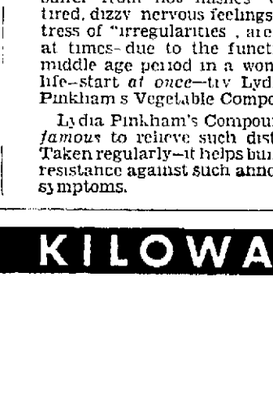
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer North. Both sides vulnerable).

What is West's best plan in an effort to hamstring South out of making 4 Spades on this deal?

Chicken May Not Needfully Be Wasteful

By BETSY NEWMAN

A chicken looks like a lot of waste, since we must buy it with head and feet on. However, I find that it is not such an extravagant buy if the family is fairly small. There are usually leftovers which may be served creamed, or in the gravy, or, as in today's recipe, as chicken souffle—stretching it out. Then we can make soup with the neck and bones, etc

Today's Menu.

Chicken Souffle
Baked Potatoes, Irish or Sweet
Cauliflower
Carrot and Turnip Sticks Celery
Apple Pie Tea

Chicken Souffle.

2 Tbsps butter or margarine
2 Tbsps flour
1 cup milk
½ tsp salt
½ tsp onion juice
⅛ tsp pepper
1 cup minced chicken
3 egg yolks, well beaten
3 egg whites

Melt butter or margerine, blend in flour add milk slowly, stirring constantly over low heat until mixture thickens and boils Remove from heat add salt, pepper and onion juice add chicken and the well-beaten egg yolks Fold in stiffly beaten egg white and turn into baking dish Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F) about 35 minutes Serves 4

REDDY KILOWATT SAYS

oh BOYS and GIRLS here's a tip about FLYING KITES

● This is certainly swell weather for flying kites—lot's of wind and everything. But here's a little tip I want to pass along to you so you won't spoil your fun.

● Never fly kites near electric lines. You know that some kite strings are made of fine wire, so if your kite string happened to come into contact with the electric wire you might be injured. Even a damp cotton string is a conductor of electricity.

● Keep away from houses, trees, and far from streets and roads. You know you can't watch your kite and traffic, too.

● If your kite darts from side to side, pull it down and add more tail. Keep a steady pull on the string at all times. If the kite begins to fall, pull in quickly.

● Don't climb trees to rescue your kite unless you are positive that the limbs are strong enough to support your weight.

● And finally, NEVER CLIMB ELECTRIC LIGHT OR TELEPHONE POLES if your kite becomes entangled in wires. I certainly do not want any of my little friends to be injured while playing. And never try to knock it down with sticks or stones—you'll ruin the kite anyway. In case of emergency be sure to call me.

Your friend,
REDDY KILOWATT.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17, 1943 — PAGE NINE

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—The change in the times is clearly marked by the initiative that the senate is taking with regard to the United Nations.

The senate is giving the president some advice. But unlike the advice the senate gave Woodrow Wilson a quarter of a century ago, the senate this time tells President Roosevelt to take the lead in organizing the United Nations.

Clapper

Probably a majority of the senate is ready now to vote for the resolution that has been prepared. But if the senators are wise, they will wait until they are sure of two-thirds for the resolution. There should be no misunderstanding this time about the attitude of the senate—and there must be two-thirds if the senate's advice is to be conclusive.

This resolution has been prepared in consultation with the senate leaders of both parties. The significant thing about it is that it comes up out of the senate indigenously. It is non-political, non-administration, non-White House, non-state department. President Roosevelt heard about the resolution only recently. Senators had talked over several points with Sumner Welles at the state department. He mentioned it to the president, who then sent for the sponsors.

But this is a senate show and the senators intend to keep it such. The men behind this move for international collaboration are middle-of-the-road men, mainly younger men, in both parties. It is not a crackpot brain child. Nor is it the child of any of the propaganda groups working for world peace.

This resolution has evolved and grown gradually in the minds of plain American senators who think that world wars are too frequent and too costly in lives and treasure and that the United States ought to try to do something to prevent any more of them. The whole move springs out of that simple, grassroots common sense. The point of a senate expression now is that since everybody here and abroad remembers that the senate once scuttled the League of Nations, the senate ought to make it clear now just where it stands.

One young Republican senator, Joseph H. Ball of Minnesota, campaigned for re-election and won, in a supposedly isolationist state, on a platform which was quite similar to the goal of this resolution. Senator Carl A. Hatch of New Mexico, the Democratic author of the clean-politics law, is working with Senator Ball on this. In introducing the resolution they are joined by Senator Lister Hill of Alabama, one of the Democratic leaders, and Senator Harold H. Burton of Ohio, a Republican. Senator Barkley, the Democratic leader, and Senator McNary, the Republican leader, have been consulted and their advice has been followed.

It would have been possible to obtain probably a majority of the senate as co-introducers of the resolution. But the senate leaders of both parties advised against trying to dress up the move with any stunt ballyhoo of that kind.

This is not a bloc move of any kind. It is a senate move. It is contemplated as an impressive act in which the full dignity and power of the senate is thrown into the development of our foreign policy, to make clear to the world which fork of the road the United States intends to travel.

Other senators supporting this resolution include Austin of Vermont, the assistant Republican leader, Chairman Connally of the foreign relations committee, Wagner of New York, Truman of Missouri, Pepper of Florida and Maybank of South Carolina. Others have advised sponsors that they intend to announce their support later on after the resolution is before the foreign relations committee.

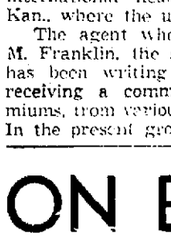
Above all, the spirit in which this is being done is what counts.

Not a single senator attempted to obstruct the continuation of lend-lease last week, not even to capitalize through any gallery grandstand play by delaying the vote, as any single senator could have done. Now the senate is making a straightforward move to make its attitude on the United Nations clear to the world. In these ways the senate is bound to inspire public confidence and help to provide the national leadership that the United States is entitled to exercise in world affairs from here on out.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

KANSAS CITY—The International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders, Welders and Helpers of America is the union which has jurisdiction over and receives tribute from thousands of American workers employed in the building of this nation's emergency cargo fleet, entirely at the expense of the taxpayers.



Pegler

Membership is compulsory on most jobs, and those who join are compelled to buy life insurance under a group policy issued to the union, not to the members, themselves, as individuals, at very high premium rates in some cases by the Occidental Life Insurance company of California.

The rates are $1.25 a month or $15 a year. This premium must be paid to the union as a requirement of membership. For this $15 a year the member gets protection to the amount of $333.33 the first year, $666.66 the second year and $1000 in the third and ensuing years while he remains a member in good standing.

Any insurance agent will be glad to write individual policies for $333.33 or $666.66 for much less than $10 a year and it can be assumed that most of the wartime members will drop out before they would be eligible for the $1000 coverage by reason of their having belonged more than two years continuously. These rates per thousand for the first and second years are $45 and $22.50 respectively.

There are now about 200,000 members. The actual figure is a secret held by the union's national officers or bosses.

Section 80 of the Article 12 of the union constitution says:

"Any member failing to pay monthly dues and insurance as provided in this section is automatically suspended from all rights and privileges of the international brotherhood." That provision is here cited to prove that the insurance is compulsory.

The president of the union is J. A. Franklin, an elderly veteran unioneer, whose name is signed in facsimile on all policies. His home and the international headquarters are in Kansas City, Kan., where the union owns an office building.

The agent who wrote the business is Harold M. Franklin, the son of the union president. He has been writing such insurance as agent, and receiving a commission on the compulsory premiums, from various companies since October, 1926. In the present group policy written by Occidental he is associated with Jerome S. Koehler, also of Kansas City, Kan.

Franklin, the younger and William E. Walter, the international secretary-treasurer, deny that young Franklin is now or ever has been the agent of any insurance company writing group-insurance policies on the members, of which there have been three in the last years. The predecessors of the Occidental of California were the Chicago National Life Insurance company and the American National Insurance company, of Dallas.

J. A. Franklin, the president, refused to make a statement when invited to do so.

"I don't make any statement to anyone unless it is their business to inquire into it," he said.

Young Franklin said, "I don't care to talk about it. I was not then the agent of the Occidental when the policy was signed. I am not now."

Confronted then with his sworn declaration in various court documents filed by him in litigation over his share of the commissions from such insurance, young Franklin's only reply was "uh-huh."

Walter said the union had never had any such dealings with the son of the union's president and had dealt only with Koehler and an assistant secretary of the Occidental.

"I know nothing about any connection of Harold Franklin," he said. He said he had no knowledge that Franklin ever operated as agent in any negotiations between the union and any insurance company.

Mr. Walter was then informed that young Franklin had stated under oath that he had acted as such agent and had sued for commissions which he believed to be due him and asked if in view of these court records he still insisted that he had no knowledge of the deal.

"You have stated it correctly," he said.

The union membership has greatly increased since the Occidental contract was written in July 1941. There were then about 40,000 members and the premiums would have been $60,000 but it is impossible to estimate the commissions payable to young Franklin and Koehler because their agreement with the company calls for 6 per cent commission on new members for their first year and 4 per cent on premiums for subsequent years. Between the union president's son and Koehler it was agreed that young Franklin was to get two-thirds and Koehler one-third of the commissions.

In the first year of the contract with Occidental, the premiums were about $1,600,000 greatly exceeding expectations, thanks to the Japanese at Pearl Harbor. Inasmuch as this all was new business, the commission rate was $96,000 of which young Franklin was entitled to $64,000 and Koehler to $32,000.

GOP LEADERS FIGHT REVOLT IN OHIO SENATE

Party Members Protest Parts of Bill To Increase Hours For Female Labor.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — The Republican leadership of the Ohio senate strove today to quell a rebellion among its party members against the administration's female labor bill.

The measure, increasing the legal working hours and occupation of women and minors in the state's industries, was up for a vote.

Leaders of the Republican majority were fearful a battle over the bill's provisions on the senate floor would jeopardize its chances of passage.

So they called a caucus of Republicans, to be held immediately before the day's session, and invited the members to air their differences behind closed doors.

While Majority Leader Frank E. Whittmore expressed belief they would agree on the bill, sponsors of the measure said if the dissension persisted, a vote might be postponed.

They insisted the bill retain the provision for a 52-hour week for all industries. The law now sets a maximum of 45 hours for factories and 48 for most other lines of business.

Here was the situation as voting time approached:

Sen. Joseph I. Ross (R-Montgomery), author of the bill, had changed his position and was urging a 48-hour limit;

Several other Republicans privately opposed the 52-hour plan;

Sen. Walter G. Nickels (R), a New Philadelphio hotel proprietor, demanded that women be permitted to work as bellhops, an occupation now barred to them; and

Sen. P. H. Rogers (R-Lorain) wondered if a provision, lowering from 18 years to 16 the age limit for boy factory workers, might result in the loss of more farm labor.

The house of representatives yesterday completed enactment of legislation authorizing financial institutions to liberalize requirements for loans on farm property and unimproved real estate.

The senate sent to committee, for preliminary consideration, a bill by Senator Maurice W. Lipscher (D-Mahoning) to remove the state from the liquor business. He proposed that the state stores be replaced by wholesale and retail stores, operated by private persons under regulations of the state liquor control board.

FACE CLOSING

Citizenship Classes Need More Applicants.

With enrollment in citizenship classes in Mansfield far below the anticipated figures, W. S. Boniece, president of the Mansfield Citizenship club, said today that the training at Bowman and Newman schools may have to be discontinued unless more interest is shown.

Classes for foreign-born residents of the city and county who are seeking their naturalization papers were started last week at the two city schools.

Boniece said only 12 persons reported at the Bowman class last night and eight or nine attended the Thursday class last week at Newman school.

"We have 300 potential students in Mansfield and the county who could obtain this training for a small charge, and unless more report for instruction we will have to combine the classes or discontinue them," Boniece said.

The Mansfield board of education recently took over the classes after WPA was discontinued. The board employs three teachers for the classes which are conducted Tuesday nights at Bowman school and Thursday nights at Newman school.

ENGLAND'S ONLY CARDINAL DIES

Archbishop Hinsley Officiated at Services For Yanks Last Thanksgiving.

(By United Press)

LONDON — Arthur Cardinal Hinsley, 77, archbishop of Westminster and primate of the Roman Catholic church in the United Kingdom, died today of heart disease.

Death came at 7:20 a. m. in his country home in Huntingford, Hertfordshire, after a courageous fight to live. He suffered a heart attack nearly two weeks ago and had been in a critical condition since.

The archdiocesan council will meet today to make arrangements for mass at Westminster cathedral and the funeral.

Hinsley was the United Kingdom's only cardinal and one of the six archbishops of England, Scotland and Wales. His archdiocese, Westminster, is one of the most storied in Britain and his seat was beautiful Westminster cathedral.

He was born in the Yorkshire village of Carlton, the son of a carpenter, Aug. 25, 1865, and was educated at Ushaw college which had produced two other archbishops of Westminster.

In 1930, he was named archbishop of Africa but resigned in 1934 after a parathyroid attack. He became archbishop of Westminster in 1935, and was created cardinal in 1937. He was outspoken against the Axis aggressors. Last November he officiated at Thanksgiving services for American soldiers.

With the course almost at an end, tentative plans are under way for a banquet to mark its grand finale.

The heavy rainfall yesterday nearly played havoc with Boy Scout headquarters, although serious damage was prevented by the alertness of scout officials. It was discovered that water was seeping into the lower floor headquarters, and threatening to cause considerable damage. However, scout officials, under the direction of Floyd Dent, went to work and checked the impending "crisis." The carpets were soaked, necessitating sending them to the cleaners, while other slight disturbances were reported.

The Mansfield schools may be the only public school system in the nation which is sponsoring a pilot training program outside the schools, the board of education has learned. An air agency certificate, designating the schools as official sponsor of the training project at the Mansfield airport, has been issued to the board by the Civil Aeronautics administration at Washington. The board serves as a "go-between" for the Harrington Air service in its dealings with the government since a private or municipal training project must have a sponsor. Board members were informed that the school system here probably is the only one in the country serving in that capacity. Colleges usually sponsor the programs.

Laff-a-Day

"Dora's gone back to her husband. She couldn't bear to hear of him having such a good time!"

U.S. MANEUVERS TO OUTSMART JOHN L. LEWIS

WLB Plans to Force Showdown on $2-a-Day Pay Boost Demand of Miners.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — —The government today is maneuvering to beat John L. Lewis to the punch on his threat to order 450,000 men from the soft coal pits on April 1.

President Roosevelt backed down under Lewis-called strikes in 1941, but this time the administration gives every evidence of digging its toes in to meet Lewis and to beat him—if possible.

Chairman William H. Davis of the War Labor Board, who has been licked by Lewis before, apparently intends to force a showdown on the issues involved in the United Mine Workers' $2-a-day increase demand before it actually reaches his board. He announced last night that the board on next Monday would consider and probably vote upon American Federation of Labor demands for an upward revision of the "Little Steel" fomula's 15 per cent wage ceiling and on other adjustments proposed to establish a new wage stabilization policy.

It is conceivable that the board may be compelled to break through the ceiling to some extent, but all other evidence indicates that there will be no break-through sufficient to allow a $2-a-day hike for the miners when their case finally reaches the board.

If the board's decision Monday is to compromise just sufficiently to maintain the support of AFL and CIO members, it would be in a strong position against Lewis. He would find himself opposed, not only by the War Board but presumably by the two major labor organizations whose leadership he has equally denounced and despised.

Davis acknowledged that the "Little Steel" formula was established in May, 1942, and therefor could not take into account cost of living increases since then. AFL members of the board who have demanded upward revision of the formula charged in their petition for review that price and living costs had not been controlled as had wages. Davis told a press conference last night that he thought the effort to control prices and living costs had been "remarkably successful — when you consider the overall picture."

Meantime, WLB member Roger Lapham snapped: "If the AFL wants inflation, they should ask congress for it," recalling that it was congress that passed the anti-inflation act.

CELEBRATION TO BE AT STADIUM

Independence Day Program To Be Staged at Senior High, Officials Decide.

Mansfield's Independence day celebration will be staged in the stadium at Mansfield senior high school, it was announced today.

Permission to use the stadium for the July 4th program has been granted the Mansfield Public Parks association by the board of education. No celebration will be staged at the fairground because of the fire which razed the grandstand.

There will be no fireworks demonstration this year, park officials said, but discussions are underway for a suitable public program. A military show or pageant are being considered.

In authorizing use of the stadium, school board members pointed out that unsafe bleachers would have to be repaired before a large crowd would be permitted to use them.

The board also authorized the Mansfield Music Study club to use the John Simpson auditorium the nights of May 3, 4, 5 and 6, for programs in observance of National Music week. A charge of $15 for the four nights was established by the board.

School music groups and other organizations in the city are expected to participate in the programs during the week. The Music Study club doesn't expect to charge admission for the series of entertainments.

READY TO MOVE HUGE QUANTITY OF ORE IN '43

Hope to Top Previous Mark In Iron Shipments From Minnesota Range.

DULUTH, Minn.—(U.P.)—Thousands of workmen in Minnesota's north country are braving subzero cold and driving snows to prepare for the greatest movement of iron ore in history during the next shipping season on the Great Lakes.

The men who work in Minnesota's vast open-pit mines are getting ready to move more than 100,000,000 tons of iron ore between the spring and fall of this year. If the goal is achieved, the record easily will surpass the previous all-time high of 92,000,000 tons shipped on the Great Lakes last year.

The workers are opening new mines are repairing hundreds of machines in preparation for the resumption of activities when warm weather arrives, but most spectacularly of all, they are removing a lake from the map of Minnesota.

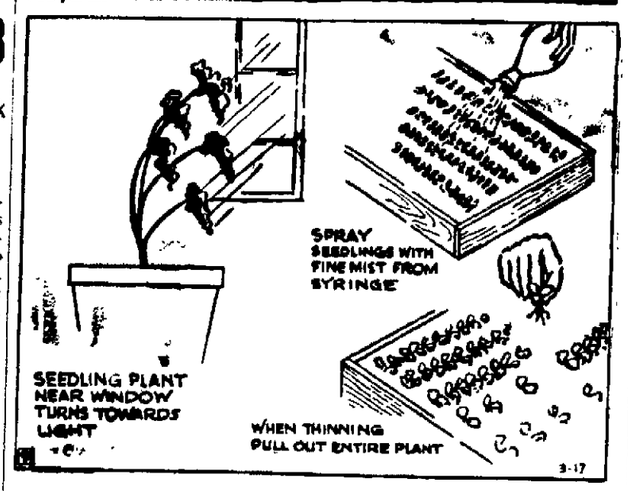
They are draining Mountain Iron lake to open up the oldest mine on the Mesabi range. During the 35 years that the mine has been idle it has become a lake a half-mile long, a quarter mile wide and 140 feet deep.

The Oliver Mining company, a U. S. Steel subsidiary, has pumped water from the lake at the rate of 6,500 gallons a minute. It will be ready for operation this spring.

Another big mining company is removing 16,000,000 cubic yards of overburden to get at the ore underneath. This involves digging through about 6 feet of frost and hauling the overburden from 4 to 6 miles. Sometimes the temperatures in which the men must work are down to 30 or 35 degrees below zero.

The mining company shops are operating around-the-clock to get machinery in first-class condition before operations are resumed. Hundreds of steam and diesel locomotives are being reconditioned for the heavy hauling. Similar work is being done on tractors, trucks, power shovels, drills, road graders and sprinklers.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



SPRAY SEEDLINGS WITH FINE MIST FROM SYRINGE
SEEDLING PLANT NEAR WINDOW TURNS TOWARDS LIGHT
WHEN THINNING PULL OUT ENTIRE PLANT
3-17

Selective Service for Victory Garden Seedlings

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n.

As VICTORY GARDEN seedlings make their appearance flats should be placed where they will receive full light. Leggy seedlings are the result of lack of light and overcrowding.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, if plants are being grown near a window the flat should be turned every few days in order to keep the plants growing erect, instead of leaning towards the light as they will.

After the seedlings have appeared the best method of watering is by sub-irrigation, but if this is inconvenient use a syringe as illustrated. With a syringe one can spray the plants with a fine mist and thus avoid the danger of washing the soil away from the tiny roots. Morning is the best time for watering in order that the plants may go through the night in a dry condition.

When seeds have been planted too thickly, or when maximum germination has resulted, seedlings are apt to be overcrowded. Thinning should begin early. At first only every other plant needs to be pulled out. Do not pinch the plants off at the soil surface for the roots may rot and foster disease in the flat. Pull out the complete seedling as illustrated.

SHORT ON TYPEWRITERS

CARSON CITY, Nev.—(U.P.)—If the WPB doesn't relent pretty soon, attaches of the 1943 Nevada legislature are going to have writer's cramp. A drastic shortage of typewriters has slowed down the business of the legislature considerably already. The WPB refused to permit purchase of new machines.

BULL SELLS FOR RECORD AMOUNT

LIMA — (NS) — Glengarry Sir Burton brought the highest price paid for an Ayrshire since 1919 and the second highest price in history. He was sold to Howard Baum of Ross county for $3,600 at a Lima auction sale and therefore will stay in Ohio despite an attempt of a group of Canadian cattlemen to return him to Canada. The Canadian representative, James Biggs, offered $3,550 for him. Sir Burton, one of North America's most famous Ayrshire sires, was imported to Canada from Scotland and was bought by the Buckeye Ayrshire farm from its Canadian owner. He was a reserve grand champion at the Royal Winter fair in 1937.

Eight "paint farms" throughout the country test the reactions of paint on different materials in varying climates.
